ALLIES TO CONTINUE WAR TO THE END

Suggestion of Peace From Germany Received With Disdain—German Fleet May Be Forced From Its Haven.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Dec. 10.—In all the capitals of the entente powers the peace talk of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, met with stern rebuffs today. The attitude of the allied governments is summed up in this laconic phrase: "We are determined to fight it out on this line if it takes ten years."

From Petrograd, Rome and Paris came messages breathing the same spirit of confidence which has marked the Allies since the war began. However, while the Allies are determined to stand together and consider no proposals for peace, they do not under-estimate the strength of the German allies nor minimize the victories that Germany and her Allies have won.

In British official circles it is considered that the best answer to the German chancellor is the fact that even now the war chiefs of the allied countries are planning fresh campaigns by land and sea.

At the high council in Paris suggestions were made, as to how the German high seas fleet might be forced from its haven in the Kiel canal.

The military chiefs are satisfied with the progress of operations on all the fronts, it is said, notwithstanding the check at the Dardanelles and the subjugation of Serbia by the Austro-Germans and Bulgars. The Allies believe that Germany has already passed the climax of her military achievements and that the peace talk of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg is an effort to bring up the question of terms while Germany is at the zenith of her conquest.

GERMANY NOT TO ANNEX TERRITORY

Chancellor's Statement Satisfactory to German Socialists—Reichstag Leaders Approve His Attitude Regarding Peace.

Berlin, via Amsterdam, Dec. 10.—At a meeting of the Social Democratic party today which was attended by a majority of the members, resolutions were adopted declaring that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's answer to the interpellation of Dr. Scheidemann was satisfactory, as it showed the German government had no desire to annex territory.

Party leaders in the Reichstag today expressed unanimous approval of the German government's attitude toward peace as set forth by Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial chancellor, at Thursday's session. They emphasized the willingness expressed by the chancellor to discuss any terms that the allies might offer which would be compatible with Germany's dignity and safety.

They were practically unanimous in declaring that responsibility for the war "must rest upon the allies in the future, as it has in the past." This view is also taken editorially by the leading German newspapers.

In no circles in Berlin, however, is there any hope that the entente powers will propose peace terms. The general opinion is that the allies, relying upon their resources, will continue the war, in the expectation that Germany will ultimately be overthrown.

Auto Club's Annual Meeting.
The annual meeting of the Automobile Club of Ulster County will be held in the court house on Monday evening, December 13, at eight o'clock, for the election of the following officers: President, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and two members of the board of governors. Nominations will be made at the meeting.

Home To Overlook Reservoir.
Joseph Ohmacht has sold to Henry J. Michaux, of Philadelphia, a parcel of land in the town of Hurley, overlooking the Ashokan reservoir. Mr. Michaux is connected with the Symphony Orchestra of Philadelphia, and intends to erect a summer home. The sale was made through the agency of W. F. Abernethy.

To Open Meat Market.
William Leppert will open a meat market at 158 Hasbrouck avenue on Saturday. He expected to open a few days ago, but has been delayed by the non-arrival of store fixtures. The store was formerly occupied by Louis Brown as a confectionery store, but Mr. Brown has removed from business.

Cashin To Take Examination.
Corporal Leroy Cashin has been rounded to appear before the examining board in Albany on Saturday evening. Corporal Cashin was recently elected second lieutenant of Company B. It is necessary for him to take this examination before he receives his commission.

HOSPITAL BENEFIT A GREAT SUCCESS

Large Attendance at Butterfly Ball Thursday Night In Armory—Butterflies Greet Guests—Beautiful Decorations—Series of Interpretative Dances Given.

"Then all at once out of this dull, dead, motley of harmonious nothingness, a single gorgeous spot had revealed itself, swelled out and disappeared; a butterfly had opened its wings, laid bare their inside splendor and closed them again—presenting to the eye only the adaptive, protective exterior of those marvelous swinging doors of its life. The wonder was that nature could so paint the two sides of this thinnest of all canvases, the outside merely daubed over that it might resemble the dead and common and worthless things amid which the creature had to live." "The inside designed and drawn and colored with lavishfulness of plan, grace of curve, marvel of hue!"

With this marvelous canvas as the model, not one, but literally countless number of these beautiful creatures fluttered and swung and poised before the bewildered gaze of the hundreds of guests who entered the armory Thursday evening for the long anticipated and heralded Butterfly Ball. Great glowing, dainty-bued, exquisitely marked, butterflies greeted the guests at the very doors, and no candle ever attracted motifs of such gauzy beauty as did the large electric lights in the entrance hall. One was loth to pass through their winged midst with haste, yet the vision ahead beckoned imperatively. The famous "Dream Garden," by Maxfield Parrish could not be more beautiful than the picture which fairly bewildered one with its effect of flowers and lights and more, many more butterflies.

The great brown, earthlike space of the floor was bordered on either side by terraced flower beds of leathery evergreens, bordered with latticed boxes of tulips; tulips pink and white, golden and orange crimson and many tinted. At the entrance to each garden (Bosch), stately and full blooming hollyhocks of every describable coloring kept guard. Here and there graceful branches of dog-wood blossoms rose in the garden.

And in every garden were seated beautiful women and courtly men, a bed of golden daffodils smiled and nodded on one side of this garden (The Lemonade Booth).

Spreading branches of dog-wood blossoms, huge butterflies resplendent, appeared between the sentinel-like cedar trees about the refreshment room, and some exceptionally rare specimen butterflies had alighted upon the balcony.

Overhead soft lights shone through misty draperies, giving an exquisite effect of white billowy clouds. Tinting this ethereal maze were swinging in space, more of the winged beauties.

And at the farthest end of all this enchanting loveliness rose the "Garden of Music." Walled in with its close phalanxes of military cedars, its grove of evergreens arose in stately grace. Against the dark and shining green, huge masses of the butterfly-like dog-wood blossoms spread. Like officers in gorgeous uniforms, clusters of aspiring and richly colored hollyhocks marked the corners of this garden, and overhead flashed and twinkled fire-fly electric lights. Just in front and high above, poised the huge Borneo butterfly, whose body radiated brilliant phosphorescent rainbow hues. No wonder fairy music to bewitch the tinkling feet of the fairies and sprites as well as the men and maids, sounded from this fascinating Garden of Music.

The uniformed members of Company M, who acted as the efficient and courteous ushers, were by the very nature of their garb, an added attraction to the picture, which was indescribably beautiful, as the lights were softened and Muller's orchestra, conducted for the program by Dr. Chandler, hushed the immense audience with the opening strains of the overture, "Les Sylphes."

Forgetting all that was modern in the surroundings, one was transported to the classic days of Pan, as there glided and leaped into the vast open garden space, "The Faun," (Irati Gadesco, the Russian dancer). All that was joyous and youthful, merry and wild, was gracefully pictured by this naive dancer in skin of deer with bright touches of leaves and berries, who finally dropped exhausted with his own sport and fell asleep.

Wood Nymphs Make Appearance.
Then in floated some twenty butterfly wood nymphs in soft draperies of white, flower caught and carrying diaphanous scarves of misty white. We have always known that there was much of the fairy spirit here in old Kingston and now we are sure of it after seeing these, our daughters, in that most graceful, dainty and effective butterfly ballet. So light was their footfall that the lone sleeper knew not of their presence, until discovering him, the merry butterflies began pelting him with roses. Slowly he awoke, stretched and rose, lithe and alert, the embodiment of spring. Then leaping into the center of the group of coy and curious maidens he danced for them the "Spring Dance," and left them wondering. "Waltz Memories," by the ballet, followed, and was exceedingly pretty.

Again a bevy of the nymphs, given to the doctor and his wife, for glided into the open with the mysterious brown chrysalis, which they left in the center of the garden, then watched on tiptoe, as did all the audience, metaphorically speaking. Presently, a slight motion was noted, and slowly but with grace there rose from that small house a beautiful butterfly, whose exquisite colorings would well make Dame Nature smile approval. And what a lovely dance was the "Birth of the Butterfly," as given by Miss Ellen Hasbrouck! Fluttering into motion, she all but flew so light was her step, and with dip or spread of gauzy wing, artistic poise or momentary droop, she fascinated the onlookers, who from the very beginning of the program were most enthusiastic in their applause, often fairly drowning the music. Adding another touch of the wild and classic came rushing before the spectators, Gadesco, as a Bacchante, clad like a luscious grape herself, and with both hands filled with clusters of the purple fruit of the vine. This Dance Bacchanale, given with primitive abandon, was followed by a "Dance of Joy," swift and free, with swinging, flying scarves, in charming figures, given by the ballet, the members of which were Miss Marjorie Davis, Miss Rose Kemble, Miss Mildred Hillebrand, Miss Elizabeth Hasbrouck, Miss Jeanette Vogel, Miss Katherine Pehleman, Miss Ida Weber, Miss Dorothy Schoonmaker, Miss Jane Van Etten, Miss Rebecca Martin, Miss Sarah Horton, Miss Elizabeth Cookburn, Miss Marjorie Dolson, Miss Florence Gray, Miss Margaret Nisley, Miss Ruth Ashley and Miss Mollie Loughran.

Solo Dances by Lada.

Part Second was given over to Lada, whose four interpretative solo dances would have held Richard Wagner, that master of music, motion and color, spellbound. Was it maid or veritable wood fairy in soft brown draperies and wreath of bright berries and leaves, that floated into the spot light that softly vignettized the dancer wherever she moved? The very spirit of MacDowell, the composer of the music, breathed and moved, coquetted with and ran from, wood, and won the ever elusive shadow of this day, whose every motion was as light as thistle down. Lada's next dance was widely in contrast to the first one. Gowned in clinging robe of cloth of gold and green, with elaborate coiffure and still more elaborate head dress, she entered the ball room with an air of great hauteur, and as the light fell full upon her she seemed like Galatea of old to be some lovely piece of bronze statuary come to graceful life. This Dance of the Incroyable, of the French transition period, was now stately, now graceful, again slumping, and then dignified, and always charming the beholder.

In the Second Rhapsody (by Liszt) a marvelous tone picture of the entire history of Hungary, Lada reached the pinnacle of her marvelous art, and held her audience breathless. Robed in the rich splendor of "Pannonia," the "Columbia" of Hungary, she pictured in motion, in pose, in facial expression, the struggle of this land of the Magyars; their pride, their happiness, their despair under defeat; their renewed and courageous battle for existence; their abject fear and their delicious joy. No words can describe the marvelous and often tragic beauty of this dance.

Lada's last appearance was in the tremendously popular "Blue Danube Waltz" (1830) by Strauss. In the picturesque dress of the period and of gay Vienna, Lada pirouetted, and glided and whirled into the audience, and went wild with enthusiasm. As she tripped an encore, Admiral Higginson presented her with a huge armful of the gay pink paper tulips, tied with a long scarf of pink satin ribbon, an appropriate souvenir of the occasion, and there was another wild burst of applause, for all were loth to bid farewell to the wondrous Lada.

Period Dances in Costume.
The third part of the program was devoted to three period dances in the costume of the times. The 17th dance, "Gavotte," was given by Miss Marguerite Dolson and Miss Rose Kemble, who were exceedingly picturesque in powdered coiffure and wig and Watteau picture dress of dainty-colored satins. Miss Mildred Hillebrand and Roger H. Loughran gave the 18th dance, the waltz and gallop. They, too, presented a charming picture. Miss Hillebrand in a gown of white and black, with panther and hoop and dainty pantalette, and Mr. Loughran in striped trousers, brass-buttoned swallow tailed coat and high stock, and they tripped the light fantastic in graceful fashion. Finally, the 19th dance, those of the present, were given by two masked dancers, who rivalled the dancers of earlier days in their charm and grace. When the masks were dropped, the performers were found to be Miss Ellen Hasbrouck, in handsome gown of old gold satin and net, and Sabler Hornbeck, who led the guests at the ball, onto the floor for the general dancing, to the exceptionally fine music of the orchestra, which included many of the members of the Symphony Orchestra, and which was conducted by George H. Muller, the Symphony Orchestra director.

Dancers Present Brilliant Picture.
The immense crowd made dancing in the early part of the evening a matter of skillful leading for a time, but it was all hugely enjoyed by every one present, and the picture was a brilliant one, for the women were elegantly gowned and very winsome.

Kingston has had many a rarely fine social function of this character before, thanks to the clever skill and efforts of Dr. and Mrs. Chandler, but this Butterfly Ball far exceeded them all, and enough praise cannot be given to the doctor and his wife, for

ABE RUEF AND NIECE BERTHA ALTMAN

RUEF TO START LIFE ANEW.

This picture shows Abe Ruef, former political boss of San Francisco, after his release from San Quentin prison, California, where he served a term for bribery and political corruption.

Since his release, Ruef has shown a fondness for his little niece, Bertha Altman, and is her constant companion. Little Miss Altman, in turn, is very fond of her "Uncle Abe" and friends say that the little girl has played a large part in the reformation of Ruef, who declared his intention of beginning life anew.

the exceedingly artistic, yet, aesthetic program, and lovely decorations, What they conceived Samuel E. Page of Boston, who acted as general director of decorations carried out with wondrous skill and effectiveness. The Ulster Garden Club has won added laurels through the Butterfly Ball, for under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edward Cockendall and Mrs. George Washburn, summer's lovely blooms were rivaled indeed by the myriads of blossoms that adorned the armory. In this work and in the making of the gorgeous butterflies, the women of the various women's clubs, and many outside, have aided greatly. Special mention must be made of the efficient training which the ballet received from Madame Emme Imkert of the New York Hippodrome.

Others who contributed most generously to the artistic success of the affair were James O. Winston, who gave all of the evergreens, sending his forest with them to the armory; The Martin Cantine Tissue Paper Company of Saugerties, which gave all of the crepe paper for the flowers; Carl Feimer of Boston, who sent as a contribution, six hundred yards of white tulle; Electrician R. B. Osterhoudt, whose effective operations of the lights greatly enhanced the beauty of the entire picture; and superintendent of construction, Sergeant Edward D. Fitzgerald.

Box Holders at Ball.

Probably no former social event in the city ever drew so large a gathering, and every available chair, the balcony and every box was filled to its utmost capacity. The 26 boxes were taken by the following people: No. 1, Davis Hawk; No. 2, C. Gordon Reed, Dederick Gale of Saugerties, and A. A. Herbert; No. 3, A. Carr; No. 4, William A. Warren and H. Gillespie of Saugerties; No. 5, F. G. Phelps, R. Washburn of Saugerties; No. 6, E. Clarke Reed, J. and E. Washburn of Saugerties; No. 7, Judge James A. Betts; No. 8, George Washburn and George Hutton; No. 9, Rodney Osterhoudt; No. 10, Dr. George Chandler; No. 11, Charles Tappen; No. 12, Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck; No. 13, Mrs. Edwin Younger; No. 14, Donald Chambers; No. 15, Dr. E. D. B. Loughran; No. 16, Ed. Ward, Corkendall; No. 17, Judge A. T. Clearwater; No. 18, Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson; No. 19, James O. Winston; No. 20, John D. Schoonmaker; No. 21, Hon. Jacob Rice; No. 22, Judge Alton B. Parker; No. 23, Mrs. A. E. Anderson; No. 24, Myron Teller; No. 25, Alvin Staples; No. 26, A. M. Slauson and Philip Elting.

Now the many guests at the Butterfly Ball and the entire community will await with interest the reports of Treasurers Charles Tappen and Dr. A. A. Stern, for a very large sum must have been realized for the extension work at the Kingston City Hospital.

Erie Elevators Destroyed.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Erie, Pa., Dec. 10.—Two sections of the combination elevators of the Anchor Line Company were destroyed by fire early today. About $40,000 bushels of wheat, said to have been intended for the allies, was destroyed. The total loss runs over a million dollars. By hard work the fire fighters saved the third section of the big elevator. There is suspicion regarding the origin of the fire and the federal authorities undoubtedly will be called on to assist with the investigation.

No Such Concern Here.

Thomas Brennan, arrested in Newburgh recently for the theft of nine pairs of overalls from a store there, said he "used to work for Peck & Chaik of Kingston" and stopped in Valden and Newburgh looking for a job. He was given thirty days in jail. There is no concern in Kingston such as Brennan stated.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Petrograd—Russian troops operating in Persia have captured Sultan Gulak Pass, thus opening the road to Hamadan.

London—The Danish steamer Minck, 1,220 tons, has been sunk by a submarine. Crew rescued.

Constantinople—Turkish artillery destroyed artillery munition depots in a bombardment on the Gallipoli peninsula.

Berlin—The Anglo-French army in Bulgaria has retreated to Greek soil before the advance of the Teutonic allies.

WAR BRIDE CITY SWEEP BY FIRE

Ten Thousand People in Hopewell, Va., Homeless—Flames Started in Cabaret—Denial That German Spies Were Apprehended.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Hopewell, Va., Dec. 10.—Ruin and desolation ruled today as rescue parties searched for bodies in the blackened embers of America's first and greatest "war bride city," Hopewell. Ten thousand people who yesterday found homes in the flimsy shacks that made up the boom city were today homeless and destitute, seeking food and shelter among the neighboring Virginia towns. They lost their all in the blaze which swept away property valued at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. The miracle city, built in a year, disappeared over night.

From three to five hundred buildings were totally destroyed. Banks, hotels, restaurants, business buildings and homes were swept away. One looter was lynched by fire-craved homeowners. Gun fights have occurred between militia in charge of the fire area, and looters. Four firemen were injured in collapse of a brick cabaret, which started in a Greek cabaret.

DuPont officials today denied emphatically published stories that alleged German spies had been apprehended about the plant and the town, but the report persisted. The DuPont Company sustained no loss.

NAPANOCH GUARD FIRED; ENDS LIFE

Herman Boelinger, out of work and despondent, ended his life in the Hotel Arlington, Middletown, on Wednesday night by hanging himself to a bedpost. His body was discovered on Thursday morning. For fifteen years Boelinger had been employed in the Deportation Department of the State Lunacy Commission as a guard. His work was to take back to European countries insane aliens who had immigrated to the United States and who were to be deported. Finally the work got on his nerves and he resigned in order to retain his sanity, according to his story.

A month ago Boelinger secured a position as guard in the Napanoch Reformatory, but even this work soon became unbearable and he sought solace in drink.

On Tuesday afternoon of last week he was granted a leave of absence and went from Napanoch to Ellenville, a short distance away. Soon he had become intoxicated and it was dark, time for him to get back to the prison. He started out on the right road, but became confused and lost his way. Finally after he had stumbled along for an hour, he knocked at the door of a house to inquire his way. Who should come to the door but the superintendent of the Napanoch Reformatory. Boelinger was recognized and discharged on the spot.

Triple Tragedy in Port Chester.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Port Chester, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Because he failed to collect $44 which he claimed was due him, Israel Pelinsky today shot Max Clark and P. Pickler to death in Pickler's butcher shop, and then committed suicide. Pelinsky asked Clark for the money, but the latter replied that he did not have the money. Pelinsky then killed him and also shot Pickler, who had fled to a rear room. Going to his own home, Pelinsky fired a bullet into his mouth.

Three Midshipmen to Go.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 10.—Three midshipmen at the naval academy at Annapolis have been recommended for dismissal. They were concerned in the hazing cases last spring and were put on probation. Recently they were found guilty of minor infractions of the rules.

WHITMAN REFUSES CLEMENCY PLEA

Made by Attorney Fessenden for Ludwig Marquardt, Who Must Die in Electric Chair Next Week for Slaying Mrs. Paulus.

Next week Ludwig Marquardt will atone for his crime in murdering Mrs. Amelia Paulus on Third avenue. In the electric chair, as Governor Whitman has turned a deaf ear to the plea of Marquardt's attorney, Newton H. Fessenden, to commute the sentence from death to life imprisonment. Mr. Fessenden made a personal call on the governor at Albany early this week at which time he went into the case in full detail with the governor and set forth all the mitigating circumstances that might surround the case, but without avail as he has just received word that the governor would not exercise the executive clemency as he had found no sufficient grounds to commute the sentence. It is not known yet whether Mr. Fessenden will make an eleventh hour appeal or not.

The court of appeals in upholding the conviction of the county court in sentencing Marquardt to die in the electric chair fixed the date of his date to occur on some day of next week. It is understood that Marquardt will be executed on Friday, December 17.

FRENCH SEARCH OF 2 AMERICAN SHIPS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 10.—The state department today ordered the treasury department to obtain from the collector of the port at San Juan, Porto Rico, an immediate report on the searching of the American steamers Coamo and Carolina by the French cruiser Descartes. The department also decided to ask reports from the New York and Porto Rico Steamship Company of New York which owns the vessels. It was stated that if official reports show that four German firemen were taken from the Coamo and a German steward from the Carolina, as reported in press dispatches, this government immediately will file a strong protest with France. The release of the men will be demanded, it was said.

CALL ON AUSTRIAN CONSUL TO LEAVE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 10.—Cancellation of the exequatur of Alexander von Nuber, Austrian consul general in New York city, and a demand that he leave the country or face criminal charges, will be the answer of the United States to the demand of the Austrian charge here that the department of justice withdraw its charge that he plotted to destroy American ammunition plants. It is understood on high official authority that this action would have been taken before except that President Wilson did not desire to start any additional controversy with Austria-Hungary until the Ancona demand had been considered at Vienna. It is expected that not only will Nuber's exequatur be cancelled but that similar action will be taken in the cases of at least three additional Austrian consuls whose representatives whose identity is at present withheld.

American Neutrality Not Violated.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 10.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador today, did before Secretary of State Lansing evidence to refute the charge that a British warship chased the Danish steamer Vinland inside of the three-mile limit off the Atlantic coast two weeks ago. The captain of the warship states that at no time did he come closer than four and one-half miles of the coast.

Save $25 on These Phonographs

If You Want a Good Phonograph Pay $15.00

We will sell you "Our Music Master" as good as any machine sold up to $40 and we can prove it. It plays Victor, Columbia or Edison Records, as sweet as a bell.

Talking Machine and Record Cabinet
 This Combination Would Cost $37.50 in a Standard Machine and Cabinet of This Same Size!

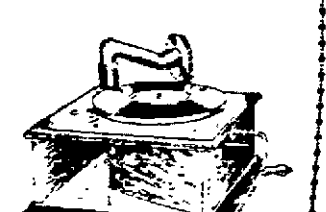

The New "Home" Talking Machine is "new and unique." It plays any record, soft, medium or loud, vocal, orchestra or band, as well as the standard high-priced makes. We will play them for you side by side for comparison.

The Machine is the same size as the $25 Victrola. It has a single-door front. It will play five, ten and twelve-inch records. Nickel-plated tone arm. Strong motor. Speed regulator. Beautifully finished in oak or mahogany.

The Record Cabinet is finished in oak and mahogany. It is equipped with record racks, 35 inches high. In the standard make of same size this cabinet alone would cost $12.50.

The "Wondertone" New Talking Machine $5.00

These are wonderful little machines; their playing is a delight to the ear. Cabinet in oak or mahogany finish. Nickel plated sound arm, brake, speed regulator and winding crank. The "Wondertone" will play all five, ten and twelve inch records.

Another big feature is the fact that we will allow you to return this machine at any time within six months, (provided it has been kept in good condition), and the amount will be credited you if you desire to purchase a higher priced machine.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 10, 1915.

A recent suggestion from The Freeman that automobile clubs co-operate with local police, magistrates and the state authorities in putting down reckless driving is practically voiced by Secretary of State Hugo, who says: "It would be of the greatest importance to the influence, prestige and dignity of every motor club to establish a reckless-driving committee to deal with its own cases, an object being to co-operate with the police by receiving through them a report of every case of reckless driving in order that action might be taken first by the motorists themselves to remedy the evil. Clubs would investigate and advise the local authorities what action had been taken. They would then become responsible, so to speak, for the good behavior of all motorists whose cars are registered in their respective districts." Probably it would be difficult to secure members of a club to serve on such a committee, and furthermore the police of some cities might be found unwilling to give the aid necessary to make the plan a success. But there seems no doubt that if a committee of a club should notify a reckless driver that he is under surveillance for his conduct and warn him of possible consequences, extending so far as the loss of his license, he would do some thinking and be less inclined to take chances in the future.

Usually in September the "high water" mark for typhoid fever is reached, but in the late September there were only 333 cases reported in this State, the smallest number reported for the month since records have been kept systematically. There was a decrease of 20 per cent in the mortality. For this showing much credit is due the state department of health, which has examined the majority of the 500 public water supplies of the State. It is said 6,750,000 people, including those of Kingston, now are receiving an adequate supply of pure water, 300,000 receive water from questionable sources, 250,000 from supplies believed to be polluted and 2,000,000 from private sources. Though the department cannot compel a municipality to improve its water supply, yet by recommendations and moral force it has been possible to obtain the installation of chlorination and filtration plants, the abatement of nuisances and the removal of many sources of pollution in watersheds. It is little short of criminal for any municipality or private water company to defer taking every reasonable measure to purify and safeguard a water supply.

The New York World says "If the Republican leaders in Congress are dissatisfied with the President's policies, let them be honest enough to face the alternative of war and let them be sincere enough to vote for war." The assumption that war would follow a firm declaration of American rights in connection with incidents in which these rights have been trampled under foot by one or another of the belligerents is far-fetched and as a matter of fact quite unwarranted. No one criticizes President Wilson for keeping this country out of war, but more than "Republican leaders" deplore a diplomatic policy which is so hesitating and apologetic that foreign nations would be justified in believing the United States is too weak to stand up for itself in vital matters in international affairs which concern it. Before the schoolmaster entered the White House the United States spoke its mind and declared its rights in a manner that could leave no room for misunderstanding, and it is not on record that its firmness ever served it ill. A nation, like an individual, is respected the more by a disputant or adversary by standing up and stating precisely what it thinks and proposes to do.

The bankruptcy of the Empire United Railways, referred to by the Utica Observer, which is located to judge, as a "little street car company," has brought out a phase of public service corporations that has heretofore apparently escaped attention. This is the excessively high overhead expenses in some instances. President Beebe of the Empire United is said to have received a salary of $50,000 and sometimes to have drawn as much as $75,000 a year for running the "little railway." The President of the United States receives only $50,000. The railway's attorney has received $25,000 a year, not including claims for extra service. The state regulates the rates and service of public service corporations and passes on financing plans and other matters relating to management and operation but never has gone into the matter of overhead expenses, which in the case of the Empire United Railways at least evidently was a factor in carrying the corporation into bankruptcy.

In Amsterdam the editor of the Telegraaf has been arrested on a charge of endangering the neutrality of the Netherlands. He has been giving expression to pro-ally sentiments. If this were regarded an offense in the United States, there would be few editors who would not find themselves in "hot water." Indeed, the sentiment of the press is almost unanimous for the allies, and in this it reflects the sentiment of a large majority of the people. Freedom of press and speech remains a fact in the United States and the neutrality of the nation is not endangered by honest expressions of opinion regarding the war. This might not be true if the United States were located next door to one of the belligerent countries, as Holland is.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, Dec. 9.—The net proceeds of the fair and chicken supper held Thursday last in the Reformed Church was $85.

The Rev. Theodore A. Beekman will exchange pulpits with the Rev. Mr. Dangremont of New Hurley on Sunday next, December 12.

Mrs. Catharine O'Neill of Montgomery is visiting her sons in this village.

Charles Ten Haggen was a visitor in New Paltz on Friday.

James Dugan, who works in Poughkeepsie, spent Sunday at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Deyo have returned from New York where they have been spending several weeks. While in the city Mr. Deyo purchased a very handsome racing horse which is much admired by his friends in this village. His friends are all looking forward to a ride in the near future.

The Rev. Father Eagan, the rector at St. Peter's Church, was given a reception on Friday evening last by members of the church and congregation.

Miss Coral Kelder, who has recently finished her studies for a trained nurse, is spending a few weeks at her home in this village.

Archdeacon Potts of New York will lecture in All Saints' Church on Friday evening, December 10. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to come and hear him.

William Tranker, who recently returned to this village from Massachusetts, has secured a position in Kingston.

Mrs. Samuel Alliger is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

Mrs. Kate Wright has returned from a pleasant visit with her son and family at Harrison, N. J.

Don't forget the bazaar and supper to be held in All Saints' parish house on Tuesday, December 14. Fun and useful articles will be on sale, suitable for Christmas gifts. Supper will be served from 5:30 for the small sum of 25 cents. Everybody come out and help a good cause and enjoy a good time.

Mrs. J. R. Simmons has been under the doctor's care the past few days.

Miss Helen R. White was entertained at Mrs. Charles Kueck's on Sunday.

Our village butcher is doing a very good business. Lets hope it may continue as we all want him to remain with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Wood spent a part of Tuesday in Kingston.

Miss Lena Clearwater of Kingston was a guest of Mrs. Ralph Lefever's on Friday.

Casper Hoaling has moved in the Dugan flat instead of the Dugan flat on Main street.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Yes," said Mr. Crowcher, "I intend to keep up the idea of Santa Claus in my family as long as possible." "What for?" "I don't want the children to blame me when they don't get just the presents they were looking for."—Washington Star.

Townley (visiting the country)—"And do you keep a dog?" Stubbs—"Well, we about keep our next door neighbor's."—Boston Transcript.

"There were plenty of other men who wanted to marry me." "Yes, and not one of the ungrateful hounds has been around to even so much as to thank me."—London Standard.

Vicar (at wedding service, his mind full of the recruiting posters)—"Will you take this woman to be thy wedded wife—for three years or the duration of the war?"—Puck.

"My daughter is very tractable because I won't let her go into grand opera," said Mr. Cumrox. "Has she the voice for it?" "No. But she has the disposition."—Washington Star.

First Vag.—"I had a rude awakening this morning." Second Vag.—"How's that?" F. V.—"A cop raps me with his nightstick, an' says 'Get up, you bum.'"—Buffalo Express.

Needed No Extras.
 Down in the crimson clover zone there were two farmers named Jones and Smith, respectively. Jones was old-fashioned and stuck to old-fashioned ways, but Smith, who was more modern, bought a fine new automobile. One day he was proudly exhibiting it to some friends when Jones came along.

"Um," remarked Jones, as he thoughtfully sized up the handsome machine. "What's that thing there on the side?"

"That's a spare rim and a tire," answered the proud Smith. "We always carry an extra one in case one of the wheels goes wrong."

"Jes' as I allers said," was the disdainful response of Jones. "I've druv hosses for nigh on 50 years, and I never had to carry a spare leg for one of 'em yet."—Philadelphia Press.

Everlastingly at it.
 A well known New York lawyer said of Germany and her submarine policy:

"Germany keeps right on—Lusitania, Arabic, Hesperian. She keeps right on. She is like Bones. 'Bones, a hostler, failed to show up at the lively stable one morning. 'Where's Bones?' the boss asked."

"His father's dead, sir," explained another hostler.

"The next day again Bones failed to show up. And the next day still he was absent."

"Bones not around?" said the boss. "His father," said the other hostler, "I told you before, sir."

"Well, look here," said the boss, "you slip on your coat and run around to Bones's house and find out if he intends to stay away all the time his father is dead."—New York Herald.

Not His Money's Worth.
 When the belligerents are down South in the spring the old boys do not take any chances with their pitching arms, letting the youngsters prove their energies instead.

One day at Little Rock, where the Detroit team was playing an exhibition, old Red Donahue, who in his day was the sharpest-tongued man in baseball, was tossing them over and letting the Little Rock batters hit at will, to the great delight of the spectators.

"Oh, Red, you're easy, easy," shrieked one very wild fan who was getting on Red's nerves. "I'm not half as easy as you are," retorted Red. "You paid 50 cents to see me do it."—The American Boy.

TEN AND TWENTY YEARS AGO.
 December 10, 1905.—At the services in St. James's M. E. Church, Rev. Hough Houston pastor, the mortgage on the parsonage was burned. Over $13,000 also was raised to clear the church edifice of its indebtedness.

William H. Fredenburgh, who in village days was chief of the Kingston Fire Department and later was the first alderman elected from the Ninth Ward, died at the age of 77.

December 10, 1895.—The first performance in connection with the Historical Pageant was given in the Kingston Opera House. One of the tableaux represented the marriage of Abraham Hasbrouck and Marie Deyo in Esopus in 1670.

The Cunningham Co., manufacturers of the Cunningham desiccated food, moved into its new building along the West Shore railroad.

Drs. Kemble and Thompson performed a serious operation on Charles M. O'Neill.

Navigation on the upper Hudson was closed.

Ladies of the Wurts Street M. E. Church held a "rainbow" fair.

MT TREMPER.
 Mt. Tremper, Dec. 2.—There was a large attendance at the donation party held at the hall on Wednesday evening. The entertainment given by some of the young people consisting of short sketches, recitations and singing were greatly enjoyed as was the supper. $40 was realized.

William Miesler has some very nice holiday gifts for sale at his drug store at reasonable prices. Come and see them.

Building In Hudson Collapses.
 Several employes narrowly escaped injury when a building temporarily occupied by Crescent Garage company collapsed on Tuesday.

A wall of the brick structure erected two years ago at cost of $2,500, slid into an excavation for a new garage, carrying with it the roof and part of the front. Damage estimated at $9,000.

To Close Season Tonight.
 The last trips by boats of the Manhattan line, operating between New York and Albany, will be made tonight.

CITY TREASURER'S NOTICE

Special Assessment.

Notice is hereby given that I have collected the warrant for the collection of the special assessment of 75 per cent of the expense incurred in the construction of a sewer, for Hemlock street and Van Hook street between existing sewer in East Chester street and Shaver property on Van Hook street, in the city of Kingston.

The same has been left with me for collection at my office in the city hall, in said city; that for thirty days from the date of this notice the said assessment may be paid without additional fees or charges, and that for the twenty succeeding days per centum additional will be collected. If any of the said special assessment shall remain unpaid at the time just mentioned, I shall give a written or printed notice to the person or persons against whom such assessment stands charged, requiring them to pay such unpaid assessment to me at my office within thirty days thereafter, with 5 per centum fees thereon, and one dollar for such notice, as required by the city charter.

Dated at the treasury office, city of Kingston, December 6th, 1915.
 F. H. FOREMAN,
 City Treasurer.

FIVE ARRESTED ON BURGLARY CHARGE

"Must not trespass only at your peril. If you want anybody call from the wall." Thus reads the sign at the approach to the home of Orlando Van Valkenburgh on top of Mt. Brook mountain, but the boast was in vain, for Orlando and his two sons, Clarence and Gilbert, aged 15 and 17 years, and Hiram Highlander, son of the housekeeper, and Hiram Moore of Brooklyn are in the Delhi jail to await the verdict of the grand jury in the matter of a charge of burglary in the third degree. They are accused of breaking in the Fleischmann mansion at Fleischmanns and taking away about $500 worth of canned goods, groceries, bedding, linen and other property. The Van's, as they are called, boasted that they could not be arrested and that for reason two officers and two deputies went to the house about 3 o'clock in the morning and took them by surprise. They were very meek when they found themselves covered with the officers' guns and were taken without difficulty to Margareville, where they were held to await the action of the grand jury.

Amendments to Game Laws.

The New York State Forest, Fish and Game League in convention in Auburn adopted resolutions favoring the following amendments to the game laws: Extension of the present hunters' license to include fishermen and trappers; to give identification badge with license so that persons may wear in a field; requiring citizens of foreign birth to show naturalization papers when applying for license; prohibiting hunting from motorcars, and abolishing the issuance of licenses for netting fish in inland waters.

TWICE GIVEN

Story of a Repeated Christmas Present

By F. A. MITCHEL

I—HER STORY.

I well remember those days when Philip and I were young—Philip was twenty-one and I eighteen—and lived on adjoining places in or rather near the beautiful village of Glendale. That was before people had become commercialized, before those who were intellectual were divided into groups, as they are now, the scientists forming one group, the musicians another, the literary people another. Then refined persons took some interest in all these branches.

True, individuals had their favorites. Philip and I were devoted to poetry. Philip had a naturally refined taste for poetry and did much to form my taste. He loved the pure and simple poets, like Wordsworth and Burns. Tennyson was in his prime at that time. At Christmas time Phil had given me a blue and gold bound edition of his works with a steel engraved frontispiece portrait of the author as a young man, and he was very handsome. His "Locksley Hall" was then a favorite, and every one with any poetic taste at all was reading it.

Philip and I used to read together, and since I owned a copy of Tennyson, Phil and I were devoted to poetry. Philip had a naturally refined taste for poetry and did much to form my taste. He loved the pure and simple poets, like Wordsworth and Burns. Tennyson was in his prime at that time. At Christmas time Phil had given me a blue and gold bound edition of his works with a steel engraved frontispiece portrait of the author as a young man, and he was very handsome. His "Locksley Hall" was then a favorite, and every one with any poetic taste at all was reading it.

There was one poem that Philip and I considered the gem of the whole book, and I have since seen it mentioned by litterateurs as one of the most effective poems ever written. This is the first stanza:

Tears, idle tears—
I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth
Of some divine despair
Rise in the heart,
And gather in the eyes,
In looking on the Happy autumn fields,
And thinking on the days
That are no more.

One morning I was in the conservatory gathering some flowers to decorate the living room mantel. Philip came in without ringing, as was his custom. Up to that moment it had not occurred to me that this period of happy youth would ever end. Indeed, I had not realized how delightful it was. Phil brought me news that it had passed forever. He had been offered a position in a western city and was to take his departure immediately.

How I strove to avoid showing the shock the announcement gave me! It seemed that I could feel the blood leaving my cheeks. Tears, so beautifully described in the poem I have quoted, "rose in my heart and gathered in my eyes." But lest Philip should see them I turned away from him.

There were but a few minutes for the parting. We had not been lovers—at least if we were we had not known it. Phil put out his hand to a plant beside him, plucked a rose that had just passed from bud to bloom and handed it to me. He said no word, but I knew that he meant it to be expressive of his regard for me. My hand was pressed by his, and he was gone, back to the house whence he had come, and reappearing with his belongings he entered a carriage standing at the gate and rode away.

I can see him now, though half a century has elapsed, waving his hand to me as he passed out of sight.

The dearest thing in the world next to Phil was now the rose he had given me. I kept it for a short time in water, then put it into my Tennyson, pinning the stem to a flyleaf on which my name appeared as the owner of the book and Phil's as the giver on Christmas day, with the date. Under it I wrote the number of a page in the book. On that page was the poem that Phil and I had agreed was our first favorite, beginning "Tears, idle tears." These words I underscored.

All this may seem very lackadaisical to those who are engaged in the humdrum of life, but to me, even though I am an old woman with snow white hair, it is the tenderest memory of my long life. I sometimes wonder if the present generation, now that the pervading sentiment of that period, or at least the almost universal love for a beautiful poem, has died away, feel as deeply as we did then. The human heart is the same, but has not the commercial spirit of the age blunted human sensibilities?

Though Philip and I were far from each other, never saw each other, he was in my heart and as much to me as he was present. It never occurred to me that I could love any one else, and I never did. Others came and went. Some honored me with the supreme compliment a man may pay a woman, but found no response in me. Indeed, I wondered what had led them to suppose I would respond.

Father's death made a great change for us, his income depending upon what he did instead of what he had. When we left our home to others who could afford to enjoy it I was ill and unable to take away with me such articles as I especially wished to keep. That which I prized most—my Tennyson—mother and the others knew least about, and for what I prized it I told no one. After my recovery I looked for it among the few books that had been brought away, but did not find it. I never had an opportunity to recover it.

II—HIS STORY.

After parting with Marion I confess that I was so filled with the new life before me that the break between her and me was completely forgotten. I wrote her friendly letters, but since I had not spoken of her to her and saw no prospect of our again living near to each other I did not think it advisable to write it now. Remembering the rose I had given her, I wished I had received some parting gift from her. But I had nothing she had ever given me except a smoking cap she had embroidered for me. This I hung on a hook on the wall in my room. Often I sat in my easy chair after a day's work with my eyes fixed on the cap and fancied her bending over it, her fair hands plying her needle in its decoration.

I am aware that many a man has become sentimental over a gift a girl has given him, and in this degenerate age such feelings furnish material for the writers of the comic papers. Nevertheless to me those thoughts of my dear Marion—though a period followed when the picture grew dim from absence—are still sacred. Her glossy chestnut hair is now white as snow. Her fair skin is now shrunken, but this does not one whit detract from the sacredness of this memory of her when she was a girl.

That period of which I have spoken, when her picture grew dim from absence, began—if it really had a beginning—a few years after I parted with her and lasted for a decade. During this time I heard that her father had died and the family had been obliged to give up the residence in which I had passed pleasant hours with her and move into a smaller one, which I understood was in another city. After this I lost track of her entirely, and my feeling for her may be said to have lain dormant.

One winter—it was thirteen years after I had parted with Marion—I found myself in a city not far from my old home. It was Christmas time, and the anniversary revived memories of the past. I determined to visit the spot where I had passed my childhood. A few hours' travel brought me there. The house where I had lived as well as Marion's home had passed into other hands. Mine was vacant, hers was occupied. Going to the latter, a lady came to the door, of whom I asked to be allowed to look over the lower rooms, explaining that I had once been intimate with a family that then lived there. She kindly admitted me.

The furniture was the same as of yore. I stepped up to the library and looked over the books. Presently my eye caught a blue and gold copy of Tennyson. A vague idea came to me of something very sweet connected with it. Taking it from the shelf, I opened it at the frontispiece and saw the familiar picture of a young poet. There on the flyleaf I saw the words, "To Marion, from Philip, Dec. 25, 18—." Beneath this was the number of a page. Turning to the page indicated, I saw the first three words of a poem—"Tears, idle tears."

That poem always seemed to me to have in it what it alone can express, so I will not try to express it. The realization of what Marion had for me, the fact that for thirteen years I had lived without it, that it had been passing into oblivion, came to me suddenly with great force.

But the poem was not all. On the flyleaf, on which the reference was written, were four pinholes and a discoloration in the shape of the stem of a flower and above the stem the marks of where the flower had been. It was plain to me that Marion had pinned a flower—the rose I had given her at parting—to the flyleaf.

"Madam," I said to the lady, who had admitted me, "could you be induced to part with this book?"

"Certainly," she replied, "you are welcome to it. We bought everything in the house from the former owner, including the books, for which we paid a song."

"Can you give me the address of the former owner of this?"

"I can put you in a way to get it." On the day before Christmas I wrote on my card "To Marion, from Philip," adding the later date. Then I put the book of poems in a box, laid the card on it and sent it to Marion. The same evening I directed my steps to her new home. I found it an unpretentious one. I was glad of it. I had become prosperous, and if Marion was still for me I wished that I could give her much more than my unworthy self. Being admitted by a maid, I gave her my card.

When Marion came down the smile that lit up her face—a smile that was mingled with a blush, for she knew that I had seen the words she had written at our parting—more than made up in the change in her from youth to incipient middle age. I shall not profane this narrative by detailing what passed between us on that happy meeting. Such scenes have been given by novelists in the shape of formal proposals fitted only for the theater. What Marion and I felt could not be given in words. Indeed, it was all feeling. Words were unnecessary.

I will only add that we spent together the happiest Christmas of our lives.

Chocolate, Spanish Style.

To know the finest method for making chocolate or cocoa one must learn of the practice in Spain or in one of the Spanish American countries. There one finds out two important things. The first concerns the utensil in which the chocolate is made. Our nearest approach to this is an enameled ware double boiler. Indeed, this is a perfectly satisfactory substitute for the heavy and fragile chocolate pots favored by some of the Spanish countries. The second point is that chocolate is better if not served freshly made. Chocolate and cocoa are much smoother and the flavor is much improved if they are prepared some hours before service. Cook the chocolate in the enameled ware boiler very thoroughly. Set in a cool place and let stand until required. Then heat to the boiling point and serve either with or without whipped cream.

PRINCESS MARIE JOSE OF BELGIUM.

LITTLE BELGIAN PRINCESS ROYAL NOT DEPRESSED BY WAR.

(Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.)

Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, the nine-year-old daughter of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth who is now in England, does not let the war and the fate of her country depress her spirits. She is a vivacious youngster and delights in animal pets. The picture shows her with her pet bull on the voyage to Great Britain. The princess is the youngest child of the royal house of Belgium and the only daughter. She was born on August 4, 1906, at Ostend. She has now joined her two brothers, Prince Leopold, Duke of Brabant, who is now at Etos, and Prince Charles Theodore, Prince of Flanders.

Chaplains in the Navy.

There are in the United States navy four chaplains of the rank of captain, eleven of the rank of commander, one of the rank of lieutenant commander, two of the rank of lieutenant and six of the rank of lieutenant junior grade. Acting chaplains have the pay and allowances of lieutenants junior grade, and after serving three years at sea they are appointed chaplains. The yearly pay of a captain is $4,000, commander $3,500, lieutenant commander $3,000, lieutenant $2,400 and lieutenant junior grade $2,000.

Duck by Duck.

An old farmer had brought twenty ducks to the market to sell and, after the usual amount of haggling inseparable from a bargain of that description, managed to dispose of the lot to a dealer.

"That's 30 shillings I have to give you," said the dealer as he proceeded to count it out.

But the old chap's strong point was not arithmetic, and he was not satisfied with this mode of payment.

"No, no!" he exclaimed. "Ye bought them at waa an' six apiece, an' ye'll jist pay for them duck by duck." And "duck by duck" it had to be.—London Scraps.

NEGLECTS HIS WIFE AND TWO CHILDREN

Hanford Cross, a Chauffeur, Required by Recorder Lang to Pay $5 a Week Toward Their Support—Wife Will Not Live With Him.

A sad case of a neglected wife and two small children, one three years old and the other a babe in arms, was brought to the attention of Recorder Lang in recorder's court this morning when Hanford Cross, a chauffeur employed by Charles U. Ruler of Oak street, was arraigned, charged with non-support. After hearing the evidence the recorder placed Cross under a $200 bond to pay to Superintendent Thomas H. Edmondson of the City Home the sum of $5 a week toward the support of his children.

Mrs. Cross and her children reside at No. 145 Hunter street, while the husband boards with his employer. It was brought out that he received $10 a week and his board for his services and that he had been in the habit of giving his wife from $3 to $4 a week for the support of herself and the children. From this sum Mrs. Cross also paid the house rent.

She is a young woman not yet 25 years of age and this morning she informed the recorder that she would not live with her husband and all she wanted of him was that he support his children. The couple had separated once before but had become reconciled.

Tug Britannia to New York.

The Cornell Steamboat Company placed the tug Britannia in commission today for work in New York harbor, while the tug H. G. Davis was gotten ready and will go into commission on Saturday doing towing work at Haverstraw. This year has been marked by an active towing business, which is exceptionally brisk in New York harbor, due to the fact that a large number of scows and boats are being engaged by the railroads to be used to store freight on destined for Europe. The war has boomed the export business and in order not to tie up the freight cars the railroads are transferring the freight into the boats which are held until there is a ship leaving for Europe.

Shovel and Wood in Sewer.

While the street force were cleaning out the sanitary sewer on Lucas avenue near Washington avenue, they found a long handled shovel and a block of wood 4 by 4 and 12 inches in length in the sewer which had caused a stoppage. How the shovel and the block of wood got in the sewer is a mystery. The owner of the shovel may have it by calling at the Municipal building on East O'Reilly street and identifying his property. It might be added that the sewer from which the shovel and block of wood were recovered is a ten inch sewer.

REPORTS RECEIVED BY COUNTY BOARD

Asylum and Hospital Charges Appropriated Among Towns—Total of Bills Passed on by Auditors $10,724.724—Printing Contract Awarded The Freeman Company.

Six committees and the county auditors submitted their reports to the board of supervisors at Thursday evening's session, besides which a number of routine matters received attention.

The committee on sheriff's accounts reported that the total amount of the claims presented was $6,799.62, which had been audited at $6,632.33. The report was placed on file.

Supervisor Shook introduced a resolution to adopt the report and audit the bills as recommended by the committee, which went over under the rule.

Asylum Charges Against Towns. The committee on superintendent of the poor's accounts reported that they had examined the accounts and books of Superintendent of the Poor Van Orden and found the same to be correct. The committee had visited the county house at New Paltz on several occasions and always found the building and grounds in good condition. Besides the produce raised and consumed, sales of produce from the county farm amounted to $1,741.89, and the superintendent had built a silo which had been paid for.

The committee reported that it would be necessary for the towns to raise the sum of $9,188.40, for the coming year, as estimated by the superintendent in his report, which has been heretofore published, and on the county outside the city the sum of $4,120 for support of poor and wages.

Asylum and hospital bills had been allowed by the committee amounting to $3,157.68, which the committee recommended be raised on the towns against which they are chargeable, as follows:

|---------------|--------|
| Denning | 18.20 |
| Esopus | 172.27 |
| Hurley | 115.29 |
| Marbletown | 370.19 |
| Marlborough | 433.64 |
| New Paltz | 34.80 |
| Plattekill | 39.05 |
| Rochester | 70.00 |
| Rosendale | 116.22 |
| Saugerties | 466.42 |
| Shandaken | 19.03 |
| Shawangunk | 306.28 |
| Ulster | 348.73 |
| Wawarsing | 128.86 |
| On the county | 518.70 |

Total $3,157.68. Pursuant to the county's contract with the Industrial Home, bills of that institution amounting to $836.94 had been paid during the year.

The committee recommended an appropriation of $1,000 to be raised on the county outside the city and set aside to pay bills of the Industrial Home during the ensuing year; the sum of $4,120 on the county outside the city for support of poor and wages, and the sum of $3,157.68 on the towns, as indicated above. The report was placed on file.

Supervisor Brink introduced a resolution approving the report and directing that the amounts recommended by the committee be levied in the county outside the city and the towns. The resolution went over under the rule.

Erroneous Assessments.

The committee on erroneous assessments reported that the total amount of claims presented was $811.37, which had been allowed at that amount. The committee recommended that that amount be raised on the county and towns against which the bills are chargeable, as follows:

|---------------------|---------|
| On the county | $16.93 |
| County outside city | 709.22 |
| Esopus | 7.14 |
| Marlborough | 21.00 |
| New Paltz | 7.45 |
| Shandaken | 13.23 |
| Wawarsing | 22.65 |
| Woodstock | 12.88 |

The report was placed on file.

Supervisor Schermerhorn introduced a resolution approving the report of the committee and directing that the amounts stated above be levied on the towns, the county and the county outside the city. The resolution went over under the rule.

Unpaid School Taxes.

The committee on town and county accounts reported a list of school districts having unpaid school taxes and recommended that such unpaid taxes, together with seven per cent in addition thereto, be levied on the lands on which they were assessed, and when collected that they be paid to the county treasurer to reimburse the county for the amount advanced. The total amounts of the unpaid school taxes by towns is as follows:

|-------------|----------|
| Denning | $40.60 |

Recommended Boiler Insurance.

The committee on insurance reported that it had received from Deyo & Hasbrouck the sum of $17,077, being a refund on cancelled insurance and had paid the same to the county treasurer. The committee found that no insurance is carried on boilers in the county buildings.

ings. There are three cast-iron sectional boilers in the court house building which are run by trustees from the jail, and the committee recommended that they be insured for $10,000 for a period of three years, which would insure frequent inspections by the insurance company. The committee did not recommend any insurance for boilers in the other county buildings. The report was placed on file.

Printing Contract Awarded.

The committee appointed to procure proposals for printing the proceedings of the board reported that only one proposal had been received. The Freeman Publishing Company offering to do the work for $1.74 per page in accordance with specifications. The committee recommended that the contract be awarded to The Freeman, and on motion of Supervisor Kolts the report was adopted and the contract so awarded.

County Auditors' Report.

The county auditors submitted their report from January 1, 1915, to December 4, 1915. Bills had been audited and paid during that time for janitors' supplies, heat, light, upkeep of grounds and buildings, and repairs, etc., as follows:

|----------------------------|------------|
| Court house | $2,125.43 |
| County clerk's building | 615.80 |
| Jail building | 1,672.68 |
| Van Buren building | 3,039.48 |
| County laboratory | 741.19 |
| Supply bills as follows: | |
| Jail inmates | 94.43 |
| County clerk as register | 361.43 |
| Surrogate | 328.81 |
| County treasurer | 223.30 |
| Sheriff | 248.77 |
| Superintendent of highways | 235.38 |
| Supervisors' expenses | 319.20 |
| County judge | 11.11 |
| District attorney | 40.90 |
| County attorney | 38.57 |
| Supreme court library | 31.07 |
| County sealer | 5.49 |
| Commissioners of elections | 88.62 |

Total bills, 1915 $10,724.61

The board of 1914 having appropriated $10,000 for the committee, there was an overdraft of $724.61. Warrants issued previous to January 1, 1914, which should have been charged to the 1914 account, had been paid amounting to $2,006.83, for the Van Buren building, making a total of warrants paid and charged to the 1915 account of $12,730.94, which made a total overdraft against the 1915 account of $2,730.94.

The committee requested that $10,000 be appropriated for the county auditors during the year 1916. During the year the committee had issued warrants to Dr. Sanderson for $173, this being the amount collected by him from patients outside Ulster county and which he had paid to the county treasurer. The report was placed on file.

Supervisor McElhone introduced a resolution that $2,730.94 be raised on the county to pay the overdraft and that $10,000 be raised on the county to be placed to the credit of the county auditors' fund for 1916. The resolution went over under the rule.

Other Matters.

Supervisor Hartshorn introduced a resolution that $225 be raised on the town of Plattekill to pay for cost of constructing town buildings. The resolution went over under the rule.

The following resolutions heretofore introduced were called up and adopted:

By Supervisor Risenbary, to adopt the report of the committee on corners and audit the bills allowed by the committee.

By Supervisor Thompson, to adopt the report of the committee on county judge and district attorney and audit the bills allowed by the committee.

On motion of Supervisor Kolts, the board adjourned until 7:30 o'clock this evening.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1431—Ladies' Apron With Princess Front.

UNITED STATES CREAM SEPARATOR

is the greatest Separator ever invented to make the dairy more profitable.

It skims the closest. It is most sanitary because its nickel silver skimming sections will not rust. An easy metal to clean anyway, but remarkably so with our Mechanical Washer.

It has a Removable Sanitary Bowl Chamber Liner. Keeps every drop of milk from touching iron. It is the ONLY Separator in more than a dozen ways. Call for complete catalog.

MILTON.

Milton, Dec. 10.—Our people were shocked and grieved when they heard of the destructive fire in Marlborough on Tuesday morning.

Twenty-three from Milton attended the meeting of the Highland Local Union of Epworth League Chapters, held at Cliftondale last Friday evening. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all.

A Junior Epworth League has been organized. Miss Rachel Clarke was appointed superintendent. The following officers were elected: President, Eunice Hepworth; vice president, Mary Martin; secretary, Elsie Brower; treasurer, Sherburne Sears. The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League was held at the home of F. C. Wood on Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Methodist services on Sunday—Worship at 11; subject of sermon "Strength for Every Day." Epworth League devotional meeting at 7 p. m., topic, "The Promises of Heaven." Leader, Miss Edith Thiells. Evening worship at 7:30; subject of sermon, "The Wages of Sin and the Gift of God." Rehearsal Methodist Church on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock to practice Christmas music.

THE POPULAR KINGSTON HOTEL

Where Christmas Shoppers From Kingston and Out-of-Town Places Are Comfortably Entertained—Haven of Rest For Transient Guests.

(By The Freeman's Special Xmas Writer.)

The Kingston Hotel on Crown street has become one of the best hostleries of its kind in the state. Its success is entirely due to the executive ability and sterling business character of its new proprietor, Leslie R. Flowers. It is a finely appointed, modern resting place for weary travelers and an ideal spot at which people coming to Kingston may comfortably luncheon or rest while on Christmas shopping bent. Here meals are served with skill, and food is prepared as appetizingly as that set before the ancient Epicurean princes. Besides being a place of temporary or permanent entertainment, it is headquarters for private receptions, anniversary dinners, banquets of business men, fraternity members, etc. In fact the hotel is one of the social centers of this community.

Mr. Flowers is a man of ripe hotel experience. For eleven years he was connected with the Eagle Hotel, and for nearly ten years the Kingston Club enjoyed his services. He was born in Kingston and has spent his entire lifetime here. Among his friends and well-wishers are numbered some of the most influential men and well-known commercial travelers in the state. He has made the Kingston Hotel the best $2.00 a day house in the Hudson River Valley.

Aunt Jemima Dolls

Aunt Jemima's whole family dressed in bright colors. Aunt Jemima, Uncle Mose, Diana and Wade Davis. Read the offer below

Every little boy and girl loves the Aunt Jemima rag dolls. They make the very best kind of playthings.

Put them in your children's stockings Christmas morning and watch their delighted faces.

There are four in this doll family; Aunt Jemima herself, funny old Uncle Mose, the little rascal, Wade Davis, and the cute little pickaninny Diana in her red and yellow pinafore.

Uncle Mose and Aunt Jemima are 15 inches tall and Diana and Wade Davis are 12 inches tall. They are all ready to cut out and stuff.

Cut the coupon from the top of the Aunt Jemima package, either the pancake or buckwheat flour. Send the coupon and four cents in stamps, and get any one of these dolls postpaid. For four coupons and sixteen cents in stamps, you can get all four dolls postpaid.

Give your full name, your street number, town and state. This is important.

Try Aunt Jemima Pancakes tomorrow

Get a package of Aunt Jemima's Pancake Flour today. Aunt Jemima's Pancakes are more delicious because the milk is already mixed in it. All you have to do is add cold water. Then see how good they taste.

Why Teichler's Bread Is the Most Nourishing!

You mix the dough, but, while working, it also consumes gluten, the most nourishing part of the flour. Yeast works when warm, but not when very hot or cold.

We prevent the yeast from working, except when it should work, by regulating the temperature all through the bread-making process. This saves the gluten, and you get 15 to 20 per cent more nourishment.

The pure ingredients we use in all our breads add their share of extra nourishment. Get Teichler's Bread at your grocer's or have our auto delivery stop at your door every business day of the week.

OUR ARGUMENT IS QUALITY

Look out for the artificial teeth with slots or grooves. You cannot see them, for they are in the rubber, but they are cheap teeth and break easily.

The main argument is PRICE with most dentists. Ours is QUALITY, and our prices are as low as is possible to make them. Our methods are simple and sanitary. When we put in teeth they feel and look as if they had grown in the mouth.

CREEK IS FROZEN OVER FOR FIRST

Severest Weather of Winter So Far—Thermometer Registers 10 to 14 Degrees Above Zero in Exposed Places.

Thursday night and this morning Kingston and vicinity were locked in the grip of the coldest weather so far experienced this winter, with the thermometers registering from 10 to 14 degrees above zero in exposed places. So severe was the cold snap that for the first time this season the Rondout creek was frozen over from the mouth to the upper reaches.

At the lower end of the creek but a thin skin of ice formed during the night, while from the Island Dock up the creek the ice gradually grew thicker and this morning the creek at Edenville was frozen over with ice about an inch in thickness. This afternoon there was considerable floating ice in the creek.

At Albany and vicinity the river was also frozen over with a thin skin of ice for the first time this winter. Between Kingston and Albany there are a number of covered frozen over with ice of sufficient thickness to skate on.

The cold weather prevailed throughout the day and the government weather report states that it will be fair and continued cold tonight. The forecast for Saturday is increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably followed by snow that night.

FORSYTH & DAVIS' GREAT BOOK STORE

For One's Friend Who Reads Much, or Should Read More, Here's all That's Tempting—A Real Christmas Book Store.

(By The Freeman's Special Xmas Writer.)

Forsyth & Davis' big book store on Wall street invites the attention of Yuletide shoppers, for never in its history were its book stocks as extensive, beautiful and so unlimited in possibilities as they are this year.

That Kingston and the surrounding countryside have enabled Forsyth & Davis to maintain a book store second to none in the Hudson river valley is a constant source of wonder and comment by visitors from the larger cities and the firm's friends in the trade.

Forsyth & Davis are naturally appreciative of the constantly increasing support given them and consequently dream of greater things for the future. Every season they strive to improve their stocks in scope and quality—to make certain that here is assembled every important item one could find by a tour of leading stores in the state. Therefore it is advisable, before going or sending to the metropolis or giving orders to out-of-town agents, to let Forsyth & Davis have an opportunity to supply such needs.

Everybody who thinks of giving books for Christmas is welcome to step into this beautiful store and browse among the works of popular as well as famous authors. Scores of new volumes have been marshaled together—fiction, travel, poetry, biography, essay, drama, personal efficiency, thought, force, history, business education, technical, boys' and girls' fiction, art, theology—whatever field of thought and endeavor in which one may be interested, here are many interesting volumes well worth examining.

Besides books, there are a thousand other suitable gift things at this store and everything is moderately priced.

DODGING AN AVALANCHE.

A Risk That Often Must Be Faced in Climbing the Alps.

While an Englishman was climbing one of the peaks of the Alps he came to a stretch of broken snow about 100 feet in breadth, composed of the remnants of avalanches which had fallen from the face of the mountain above. It was necessary to cross it. An avalanche had fallen ten minutes before this Englishman and his two guides had reached the place and another would doubtless soon follow. The crossing must be made between two avalanches.

Twenty yards this side of the snow track and perhaps 100 yards from the threatening snow wall the party paused for critical survey. The question stood for instant decision. From the appearance of the snow wall it must be determined whether another avalanche would fall within the next few minutes.

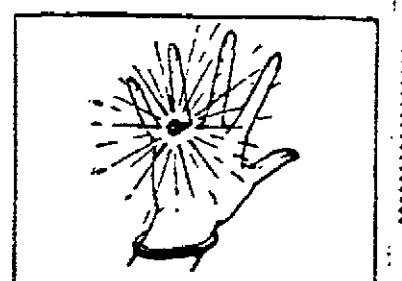

Was it best to hurry silently across? Was it best to wait? Was the next section of the snow face in such a condition that a mighty yell would send an avalanche down and gave them an opportunity for a hasty retreat? On the other hand, if they all yelled together and no avalanche fell would the concussion hasten the next fall, whereby they might be overwhelmed in the crossing?

One towering pinnacle of snow, pushed a little beyond its fellows, seemed ready to totter to its fall. They looked at it doubtfully. It ought to have gone with the last avalanche. Would it stand or would it fall within the next three minutes? A hundred feet is not much of a space to cross, but such crossing, if through fresh, broken snow from six to ten feet deep, is slow and floundering work.

From the time that the party came within view of the snow the utmost silence had to be observed, and now, the searching but momentary scrutiny completed, one of the guides whispered that they could come along. With noiseless speed they hurried forward. Silently they struggled through the snow and as silently emerged on the other side.—Los Angeles Times.

Founded Great Society.

M. Dunant, the founder of the Red Cross, bestowed his entire fortune on various charities, and subsequently received a pension from the empress of Russia. He, no doubt, had little idea of the far-reaching effect that his suggestion would bring about, for there is no section of the world that has not been reached in some way or other by this great international charitable organization, and millions of dollars have been spent for relief work.

ATTEND THE GREAT OVERSTOCK SALE AT The Paris Millinery Shop

Our Millinery Stock Reducing Sale, which began last Saturday morning, opened with a rush, and all this week the demand for stylish, seasonable Hats has been unprecedentedly brisk. We can say in all sincerity that the values we are offering during this event are the greatest women of Kingston and vicinity have ever seen.

As has been stated, we are overstocked in our ten stores, and the only way we know of to relieve this condition is to sacrifice all surplus lines, regardless of cost or profits.

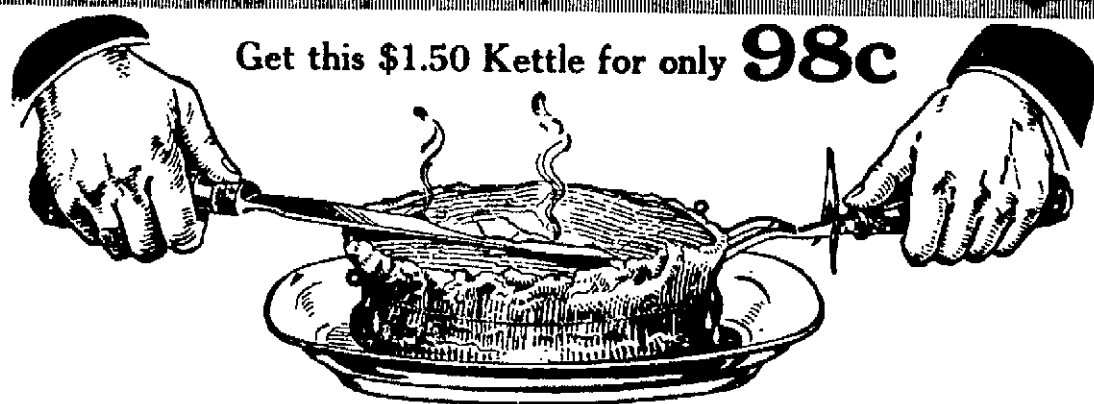

A Few of the Many Matchless Offerings

Women's Hats that sold regularly at up to two dollars and ninety-eight cents are now marked at the ridiculously low prices of twenty-nine cents, forty-nine cents and seventy-nine cents.

Women's Hats—fascinating creations—that are worth up to twelve dollars and fifty cents ordinarily, are going in this sale at three dollars and ninety-eight cents.

Children's Hats, in bewildering variety, are marked to go at ten cents, twenty-nine cents and forty-nine cents, values ranging from ninety-eight cents up to two dollars and ninety-eight cents.

A Delicious Pot Roast from the

"Wear-Ever"

Aluminum Windsor Kettle

(Note: Aluminum Kettle)

Place the kettle empty over a low flame. In the heated kettle, sear the roast on all sides; then turn the fire down to a mere flicker. When half done turn the meat over. Thus cheaper cuts of meat may be made as palatable as more expensive cuts.

The "Wear-Ever" Windsor Kettle may be used for many purposes every day in the year.

Clip the Coupon—get your Kettle today for only 98c

Take coupon to your dealer and for only 98c get a "Wear-Ever" four-quart Windsor Kettle. The kettle which regularly sells for $1.50—is offered for a limited time at the special price as you can see for yourself, if you do not already know, the difference between "Wear-Ever" and flimsy aluminum ware.

If your dealer will not honor the coupon, mail it to us with $1.20—the 22c being added to pay the cost of packing and transportation—and we will send you the kettle prepaid. You will get the kettle at the special price, on or before December 18, 1915, at the following stores:

Herbert Carl's Dry Goods, Co., North Front St.
Gregory & Co., Broadway
L. B. Van Wagenen Co., Wall St.

Other stores located wherever this paper circulates may honor the "Wear-Ever" Coupons.

We want you to get the kettle so you will understand why so many women prefer "Wear-Ever" to other cooking wares.

Was Thinker, Not Talker.
Customer—"I've been cheated. I thought you said this parrot was a remarkable bird." Bird Fancier—"Yes, sir. What I said was that he had been brought up in the company of learned men, and was full of philosophy and scholarship. Of course, he don't talk. Mere idle words have no attraction for him. But he's a remarkable parrot because he's a great thinker."

Woman's Curiosity.
The worst of women is that they are always wanting to see what will happen if they do certain things. They make a man angry just to see what he looks like when he is angry; and they make men miserable just to see what he looks like when he is miserable, and they never realize how much gratuitous suffering all this entails upon the man.—From "Concerning Isabel Carnaby," by Mrs. Fowler.

Need Innocent Amusement.
It is doing some service to humanity to amuse innocently. They know but little of society who think we can bear to be always employed, either in duties or meditation, without relaxation.—H. More.

Daily Thought.
Those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves.—Barrie.

Woman's World

The Pioneer Woman Judge of the National Horse Show.Photo by American Press Association.
LADY BECK.

The first woman invited to judge at the national horse show was Lady Beck. At the show, which was held in Madison Square Garden, New York, she officiated with Mr. James G. Marshall of the riding club in awarding the prizes for undocked saddle horses of the thoroughbred type.

Lady Beck is an Englishwoman who has ridden to hounds in Leicestershire, as well as in Canada and Virginia. At the last national horse show she rode her own hunters over the jumps in Madison Square Garden.

What she knows about hunters was in evidence at the last international horse show in England, where three horses from her stable defeated the pick of the British entries for the capital prize of the show.

Lady Beck is the wife of Sir Adam Beck, a director of the international horse show. Their home is in London, Ont.

Lady Beck goes in largely for blacks and browns. At the afternoon sessions she wore a brown tailored suit topped with a small high standing hat, encircled with black panache feathers, and brown fox furs.

Desserts For Children.

Fairy Apples.—Pure and core enough cut cooking apples to fill a baking dish; cover them with sugar and put a little cold water in the dish, also several slices of lemon and two cloves; then pour a little melted butter over the apples and bake them until tender. Serve them cold, with a blob of fruit jelly put on the top of each and whipped cream about them.

Ambrosia.—This delicious dessert requires grated coconut, sliced oranges and bananas, sugar and a wee taste of lemon juice. Fill a dish with layers of the different fruits, putting sugar over each one, and continue in this way until the ingredients are all in. Let the dish blend while in a cool place before serving. Fresh coconut is needed, and if the milk of the fruit is sweet this may be added to the dessert.

Brown Sugar Sandwiches.—For the children incessantly craving sweets brown sugar is an excellent thing to keep in the house. Spread it thickly on buttered white bread and put the slices together so as to make narrow sandwiches.

Quick Gingerbread Pudding.—Get any sort of small or large ginger or molasses cakes from the grocer and cover them with a custard made of boiling hot milk into which several eggs are beaten up. Pour the milk gradually into the eggs, stirring vigorously all the while; sweeten and pour over the cakes, allowing them to stand until they have drunk up a good deal of the custard. Serve warm or cold.

The Polite Mother.

There is but one way to teach good manners to children—good manners, that is, that are worth the practicing and are not mere polish and sham and hypocrisy—but one way, and this is to practice good manners yourself.

All over the land unthinking women are still saying to the casual guest: "How good of you to come!" "Oh, no, you are not late." "Well, it doesn't matter a bit." But to the child it is this old formula: "What did I tell you?" "Don't let me have to speak to you again!" "Thomas, shut that door!" and a hundred other inexcusable crudities.

These inconsistencies of ours rob the child in a hundred ways. They wear upon his nerves as only illogical, irrational, unharmonious and inconsistent things can. The child brought up in a home of rude, crude manners goes into the world gravely crippled, harassed and handicapped. He has been robbed before he begins his journey.

Capes For the Traveler.
Capes are doubly blessed by the traveler and by fashion, for the need of an auxiliary traveling wrap is great, and the cape aptly supplies it. Capes are being interpreted in many and various ways, some of which are charming, others speaking frankly, groggy. Among the first, however, must be rated the delightful examples made with an attractive little waistcoat, fastening with large and distinctive buttons.

Natural Query.
Addition Brace says men are not naturally lazy. Then what artificial condition or influence is it that makes us long for a sharp knife, a piece of white pine and a nice seat in the shade?

Tom Lawrence's Christmas Gift

It Was Given at a Later Christmas to Tom's Son.

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

It was Christmas morning. Tommy Lawrence, aged seven, had remained awake so long the evening before, watching for Santa Claus to come down the chimney, that he awakened late. Half opening his eyes, he looked dreamily at the ceiling and closed them again. A sound came up from below that caused him to open them again and listen intently, a sound that he had never heard before in that house.

"Bow-wow!" A dog! There could be no mistake—a sure, certain dog. Tommy's eyes lighted with a glad expectancy. Could it be that for a Christmas present he was to have a little pet barker? Of all things, he craved a real live pet, and of all live pets a dog. He gave a kick. The covers went over the foot-board, and he bounded out of bed. He was looking for the first piece of clothing to put on when "Bow-wow-wow! Bow-wow-wow-wow-wow!"

This was too much for him. He opened the door. "I'm downstairs in his nightie. In the dining room he found his brother, Fred, a boy of four years, teasing a pup. Tommy stood looking from the boy to the dog in expectant wonder. Just then his father came into the room.

"Hello, Tom!" he exclaimed. "You down already? You weren't expected. However, the secret is out, and I may as well tell you that this little puppy is to be your principal Christmas gift. What do you think of him?"

What Tom thought of the dog he could not possibly express in words, so he said nothing; but, going to the dog, he laid a hand on him. Then he patted him. Then he put both arms around him and drew his cheek against his own. Finally Tom asked:

"What's his name?" "Oh, since he is your dog you shall give him his name. What do you think of Spot?"

"I don't know," replied Tommy, still apparently lost in wonder whether it could really be true that he had a pet dog.

"Or Trip?"

"If he's a hunting dog," suggested Fred, "I think Pointer a good name."

"Suppose we make it Wad?" said the father. "When I was a boy and we didn't have cartridges we used to ram wadding down into the barrel of the gun to keep the powder and shot in place. Which shall it be, Tom, Spot or Trip or Pointer or Wad?"

Tom couldn't possibly decide so momentous a question on such short notice, but somehow the family fell to calling the dog Wad, and his little master made it Waddie. The Lawrence home stood in the center of large grounds, and Waddie had plenty of room to roam—that is, he would have when the weather warmed up, for, being nothing but a puppy, he needed to be kept warm. He was a thoroughbred, and Tommy was obliged for awhile to yield in the matter of his treatment and his diet to others. Tom would have fed him on cake and candy had he been permitted, with an occasional feast of some highly seasoned meat. He was much distressed when told that his pet must for the present have nothing but milk.

Tom and Wad grew up together. Tom regarded Christmas as the dog's birthday, and it was celebrated accordingly. Every Christmas a cake was made and at dinner a candle for each one of Wad's birthdays put into the icing. Tom ate the cake, and Wad was given some choice bones that had been saved for the purpose. As soon as the dog was old enough to be trained to hunt he was taken out by a competent person and taught the art of assisting the huntsman. This gave Tom a desire to have a gun that he might utilize his dog, and when he was twelve years old his father consented that he should have one and accompany an experienced sportsman on a hunt. The second season it was found impossible to prevent Tom's going out with his dog and his gun unattended.

After that, when Christmas approached, Tom insisted on going to where there was some kind of game that he might increase the variety of the venison for the Christmas dinner. His hunting ceased about the 1st of November and was resumed a few days before Christmas. When, on a crisp December morning, Tom went out, with his gun, his game bag and his cartridge belt strapped about him, and called Wad, the dog, seeing the paraphernalia, went wild with joy.

When Tom was eighteen years old and in the prime of his youth Wad was about twelve and growing very old for a dog. Still he was a beautiful animal and had always been coveted for his pure blood. He had been stolen several times, but had either found a way to get back to his master or had been returned for a reward. One day, in his old age, he disappeared, and when several weeks had passed and he had not returned, his master reluctantly gave him up, thinking that he had met with some injury which, on account of old age, perhaps had finished him.

One morning Tom was looking over the pictures of fashionable women in a newspaper, and his attention was arrested by a picture of a pretty girl standing beside a dog. Underneath was printed, "Miss Irene Fleetwood and Her Prize Winner." "If that isn't Wad," remarked Tom to himself, "it must be his brother. It seems that if I should call him he would jump for me."

There was a short paragraph about Miss Fleetwood and her dog, giving her address. Tom cut it out, with the picture, placing the former in his portemonnaie and the latter on his mantel. There was something in the face and figure of the girl that charmed him, and he never went into his room without standing for a while over her picture. The dog, too, was a favorite object of inspection. The more Tom looked at the dog and studied the color marking the more he was impressed with the belief that he was Wad. Quite likely he had been stolen and sold to his present mistress.

One day Tom's curiosity led him to walk by the address given in the newspaper and inspect Miss Fleetwood's home. He found it a handsome stone front residence, with costly lace curtains in the windows. The truth is, he was as much interested in catching a glimpse of Miss Fleetwood as of the dog. He saw nothing of either on that occasion, but, finding that the house was not far out of his way on going to the business part of the town, he now lived in the city—he frequently made his passages by that route. On one occasion while passing he saw the dog standing with his forepaws on a window sill looking out wistfully as if he desired to be free. Tom could not divert himself of the belief that he was Wad. Presently this belief was confirmed. The dog caught sight of Tom and straightway began to quiver with excitement, rubbing his nose on the windowpane as if he would force his way through. Tom stood looking till he feared his presence would be noticed, then he went on.

What should he do? It was probable that the lady had become possessed of the dog by purchase, Wad having been stolen. Should Tom claim him? He felt rather like making the dog the means of an introduction to his mistress.

Tom finally determined on a course to pursue. Having looked into the occupancy of the houses opposite Miss Fleetwood's, he found that lodgings were to be had in one of them and engaged a room overlooking the street. He usually occupied it about 11 o'clock in the morning or the afternoon. He saw Miss Fleetwood go out frequently, sometimes in an auto, which she drove herself, but nothing of Wad. He usually went to his point of observation in his own auto, leaving it standing by the curb while on watch.

One crisp cold morning he saw Miss Fleetwood come out of his house, leading the dog by a leash to her auto, and, placing him in the seat beside her, she drove away. In a jiffy Tom was down and out. Springing into his car, he turned on the power and followed the lady. She was evidently out for a spin, for she proceeded on a road leading to the open country. Presently Tom gave a signal that he was about to pass her, and she gave him room.

He had scarcely drawn up beside her when Wad gave a succession of joyful barks, and before his mistress could interfere with his movements, he jumped out of the car and ran to the side of the passing car, barking vociferously. Tom for awhile pretended not to notice him, then looked down at him with no appearance of especial interest, while the lady's interest was pronounced. She motioned for Tom to slow up. He did so, and both came to a stop.

"I would like to get my dog back into my car," she said.

"Suppose you call him?" replied Tom.

The girl opened the car door and called to the dog to come to her. Instead, he tried to climb into Tom's car.

"Will you kindly tell me," said Tom, "how you came by that dog?"

"I bought him."

"Well, you bought stolen property. He has been my dog for many years. He was a Christmas present to me when he was a puppy."

The young lady demurred. "Come, Beauty," she said; "that's a good dog; come."

Beauty, as she called him, paid no attention to her. He was sitting on his haunches looking wistfully up at Tom and wagging his tail. "He is a perfect witness," said Tom, "to the truth of my story. I am not going to take him away from you, but if you are willing that he should return to me I will reimburse you for your pecuniary loss."

It was finally decided between the two that they should return to the lady's home. Tom put Wad into her car, but he wouldn't stay there, and she finally consented that he should ride with Tom. When they reached their destination Tom and the girl and the dog went into the house, where Tom offered to give up his claim. But Miss Fleetwood, convinced that he belonged to Tom, relinquished the right to him, refusing compensation, and Tom took him home with him. Tom not only regained his property, but formed an acquaintance on which he had set his heart. He also in time won the girl.

Wad lived to a very old age. In fact he lived to be given at Christmas to Tom's oldest son, aged four, but died that night, the boy having given him an overfeeding of plum pudding.

Wonders of America.

"We have islands a mile in circumference composed entirely of sulphur," boasted the man from New Zealand. "You ought to see our big trees," came back the American. "You could pick up one of your sulphur islands on the tip of one of our trees and let it serve as the head of a match."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Remembered.

"Mother, you must have known our principal when you went to school." "Why, yes, I guess I did." "He seemed to remember you today. He told me what a bright girl I was, and then he said, 'It doesn't seem possible that you can be Amy Jones' daughter.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PENN'S OLD WOODS.

The Last Remnants of Our Once Great White Pine Empire.

In the mountains north of Pittsburgh there is a magnificent forest of white pine, many of which were old when the pilgrims landed at Plymouth. This forest is one of the last remnants of all the vast white pine empire that formerly extended from Maine to Maryland, from Cape Cod to the prairies of Dakota.

The white pine was the most useful timber of this nation's early history. It was used in building houses and making furniture. It served as fuel and sturdily, white pine masts carried the commerce of the young United States through all the seven seas. Pine tree shillings were among the very earliest coins minted in America. The old white pine flag was one of the earliest emblems of freedom that rose on the western world.

The white pine is of an ancient and honorable race. It has the majesty, the vigorous individuality of the pioneer. It is one of the tallest of trees. It is poetical or picturesque, and its stately dignity adds serenity and distinction to every sylvan landscape in which it stands.

The Cook forest that survives in Pennsylvania contains several thousand acres. The veteran pines are from two to five feet in diameter and from 100 to 150 feet high. Groves of aged hemlock and a scattering of oak, chestnut and maple mingle with the white pine. The forest would make an admirable state or national park. Indeed, a committee from the Pennsylvania state legislature has recommended that this glorious remnant of Penn's woods be acquired and preserved by the state.—Youth's Companion.

How to Test Paper.

You cannot test paper, as you would string, by stretching it. It has been stretched so much in the process of manufacture that it won't stand much more. The way to test it is to rub it in the hands. After such treatment poor paper is full of holes and cracks. Good paper simply takes the appearance of leather. If much white dust is produced we know there are earthy impurities. If it cracks it has been bleached too much.—London Globe

A Wise Doctor.

Some time ago Brown began to feel a little under the weather, and a physician was summoned. A few days later a friend called to see how the patient was getting along.

"I see," remarked the caller sympathetically. "What seems to be the trouble?"

"Just run down a bit," answered the patient. "The doctor says I will be all right in a short time."

"I see," thoughtfully returned the visitor. "I understand the doctor told you to take plenty of fresh air."

"Yes," smiled the patient. "He knew it was the only kind of medicine that I could afford to get."—Exchange.

The Truce of God.

The "truce of God" was introduced by the clergy of Guienne around about the year 1050. It was adopted in Spain about 1050, in England about 1080. According to this famous treaty, a cessation of all violent attacks was enjoined under heavy penalties during all church festivals and from every Wednesday evening until the following Monday morning. This left only about eighty days in the year available for shooting and stabbing one's neighbors.

The truce seems to have accomplished much good, notwithstanding the fact that it was very imperfectly observed.—New York American.

Coal Mines of Holland.

Though the coal mines of Holland have not been developed to any great extent, yet it is known that extensive beds underlie Limburg, the most southerly province. Strange as it may seem, the coal mines of Arromman are probably the most ancient, their records showing workings near Kerkrade as early as 1113. The pits now owned and worked by the state were, for many centuries, exploited by monks from the Abbey of Kloosterade, who continued their mining operations until as late as 1795. The pits, now named the Wilhelmina, the Emma and the Hendrik, gave employment to 167 officials and 4,332 pit men.—Argonaut.

Pretty Political Problem.

St. Gingham, which is on the border of Lake Geneva, is the cause of a pretty little international problem. One part is in French and the other in Swiss territory, and a certain area is owned in common. Since 1000 this communal land has been the subject of dispute, and pourparlers were begun in 1851. These have not yet been finished, but both the French and Swiss governments are taking steps to arrive at some definite understanding. A local peculiarity is that while the French inhabitants cross the Swiss frontier to go to church, the Swiss residents proceed into French territory to worship.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 10.—Price movements in the stock market were irregular during the first fifteen minutes this morning, but the few stocks in which important changes occurred showed a strong tone and in some cases substantial gains were established. Most attention was paid to Steel common, which advanced a half to 87 1/2. The buying of this stock came from strong sources. New York Central was in brisk demand, moving up half to 104, and Corn Products rose 1/2 to 19 1/2. Alaska Gold rose 1/2 to 22 1/2. International Nickel sold at 201 1/2, a gain of 2 1/2 points. Republic Iron and Steel gained a point to 56. The copper stocks were again in supply at slight concessions. Anaconda yielded 1/2 to 55 1/2, and Utah 1/2 to 79 1/2.

Trading during the late forenoon was of a professional character, but small advances made earlier in the morning were generally well maintained. Steel common sold up to 87 1/2. The Industrials showed a better tone and the railway issues were fairly active with the exception of Missouri Pacific, which, after advancing to 4 1/2, declined to 4 1/4. Money lending, 1 1/2.

The copper issues showed a weak tone during the late afternoon, and there was little demand for these securities even at substantial concessions. Anaconda, after selling at 55 1/2, dropped to 55 1/4. Utah was off a point to 79. Baldwin was under pressure, dropping from 115 1/2 to 113 1/2. Studebaker yielded from 170 1/2 to 168 1/2. The railway issues were heavy. Union Pacific dropping 1/2 to 137 1/2, and Erie 1/2 to 42 1/2.

The close was weak and nervous. There was pronounced pressure against the copper and specialists. Baldwin Locomotive dropped four points to 111 1/4. Anaconda more than a point to 55 1/4, and Republic Iron and Steel 2 points to 53 1/2. Studebaker sold down to 163 1/2. Steel common lost a point to 86. Government bonds unchanged; others irregular.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Jennie A. Terpening, wife of Joseph P. Long, died in her home at 52 Lawrence street today. She is survived by her husband and seven children, the oldest 19 years and the youngest three months. The funeral will be held on Monday morning, with a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9:30 o'clock.

Cornelius Hallinan, a former resident of this city, son of the late Cornelius and Mary Dale Hallinan, died at his home in New York City, Thursday. He is survived by his wife, five sisters and one brother, Mary, wife of Thomas J. Murray, Ella, Anna, Catherine, Jane and John F. Hallinan of this city. Funeral and interment will be in New York Saturday morning.

Christopher Long, who would have been 93 years old next February, died at the home of his daughter in Arkville on Wednesday. The funeral was held today with interment at Arkville. He is survived by the following children: William Long of Okeana, J. C. Long of Meeker Hollow, Mrs. George Dimmick, Mrs. Andrew Rose, Mrs. John Halcott, Mrs. John Beadle of Arkville, Mrs. Denny Hughes of Shandaken, and Mrs. Emma Oliver of Norwich.

Joseph Quincy Lark, seventy-five years old, died Wednesday night at the home of his son, Quincy J. Lark, at Rhinebeck, where he had been a guest for the last three months. He was born in Highland Falls, and served thirty years in the engineering corps attached to Fort Totten, retiring with the rank of sergeant. He was a veteran of the civil war, having been attached to Battery D of the Fifth Light Artillery and to the Eleventh Connecticut Volunteer Infantry. He leaves two sons and two daughters.

Red Stars Defeated.

On Wednesday evening the Red Stars of this city traveled to East Kingston and met defeat by the fast five of that place, by the score of 13 to 11. It was very fast and slightly rough game because of the ball being so small. The game was in doubt until the last minute, as neither team ever led by more than two points, first one team being ahead and then the other. At the end of the first half the East Kingston five was leading 7 to 6. Watska and Redden starred for the home team, while Dittmar and Rice carried the honors for the Stars. The Stars would like to arrange games with any amateur teams in the county. For communication, write to R. L. Dulla's, corner of Broadway and Greenkill avenue, or phone 955-J.

Gruberg's Electric Contracts.

J. Gruberg, an electrical contractor of No. 13 St. Mary's street, has been awarded the contract for wiring the temporary garage to be used by Forsyth & Davis on Green street. The Boston Candy Kitchen, owned by Pappas Brothers at No. 522 Broadway, is installing under Mr. Gruberg's direction a two horsepower motor and electric driven refrigerator machine and 200-watt nitrogen lamps and shades. Mr. Gruberg also has secured the contract for installing a two horsepower motor for Carl Kaplan of No. 80 North Front street, and extensive electrical work for B. Israel of No. 530 Broadway, and in M. Leventhal's new two-family house on St. James street.

To Prosecute 300 Doctors.

Prosecution of 300 physicians for violation of the vital statistics law has been ordered by the state department of health. The offenses in every case are violations of the section requiring registration of births within five days. The prosecutions follow repeated warnings by the department directed to physicians and through local registrars and are the culmination of nearly two years' effort to enforce the law.

No Such Concern Here.

Thomas Brennan, arrested in Newburgh recently for the theft of nine pairs of overalls from a store there, said he "used to work for Peck & Chalk of Kingston" and stopped in Walden and Newburgh looking for a job. He was given thirty days in jail. There is no concern in Kingston such as Brennan stated.

"O' tell yer that he is six feet high!" emphatically declared Mike, holding out his hand. "An' phat's more, he's 50 cents to prove it."

"G'wan, g'wan!" came back Pat in a loud voice. "O' tell yer fifty that he couldn't look over the top at that stone wall."

"Shure, an' that stone wall is more than six feet high," declared Mike, glancing at the structure, "but O' tell yer that he could do it with his hat on."—New York World.

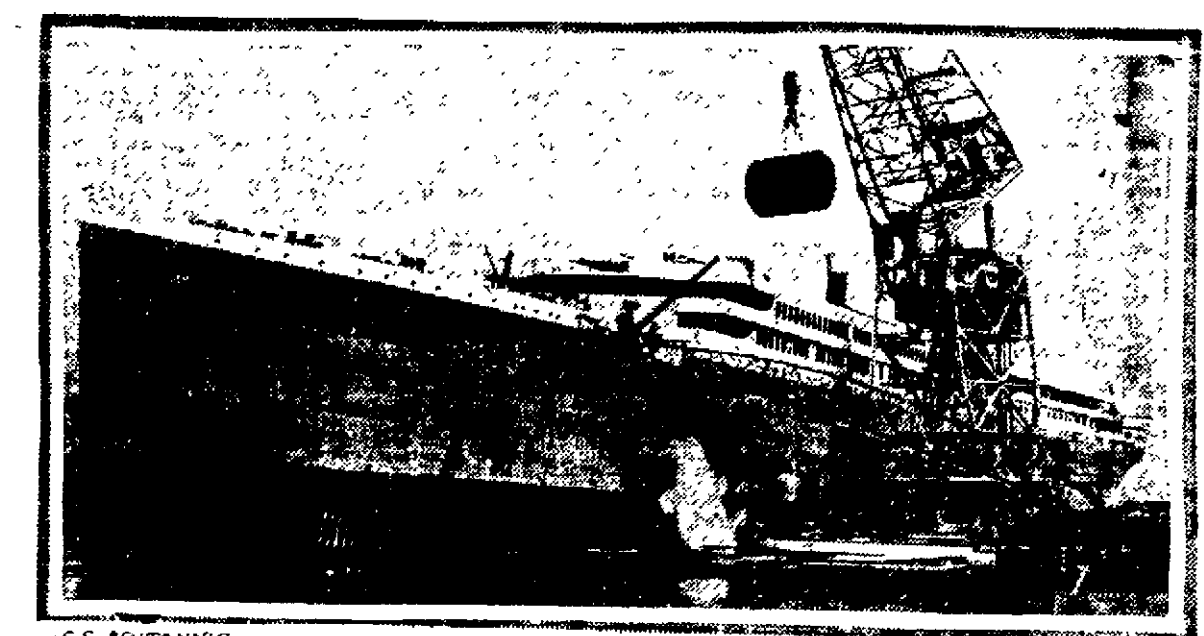

Coral That Checks.

On the coast of the West Indian islands a curious kind of coral is found called "millepore." This has a most extraordinary property which makes the people who know it very shy of handling it. The moment you pick up a piece of coral electric thrill runs through you and an agonizing pain shoots through your jaws. You feel as if every tooth and every nerve and muscle connected with them were burning. The acute pain lasts generally for about half an hour and slowly passes off, but the effects do not disappear entirely for hours. The reason of this curious shock or poisoning is a mystery.

Alpaca.

Alpaca is the name of a species of llama from whose wool the genuine fabric is woven.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Students' Council Plans to Decorate and Illumine One of Stately Pines in Front of Building—Singing By Glee Club.

The student council of the high school, forty in number, held its first meeting Thursday afternoon in the library. Plans for the future were made, the election of officers being postponed until the next meeting. Harold Bernstein was chosen temporary chairman of the boys' group. Helen Wood was the girls' selection for the position.

Mr. Moulton's suggestion that a community Christmas tree be made out of one of the stately pines in front of the building, met with hearty approval. The green boughs would be interspersed with electric lights and the glee club would sing Christmas carols. This Christmas demonstration with appropriate natural surroundings would make merry many hearts that otherwise could see the joys of Christmas only through store windows. The tree would be lighted both Christmas Eve and Christmas night.

Over $70 was realized as a result of the art exhibition held in the high school a few weeks ago. A committee of the council was appointed to confer with Miss Dour, art instructor, about the purchase of pictures for the school. Committees were also appointed to draw up a constitution and to investigate conditions in the gym at the noon hour. Only girls can dance in the gym at this time, but they are reported to be having their troubles.

The members of the student council are the representatives of their respective roll-rooms and for this reason great honor is attached to the position of councillor. The members of the council and their roll-rooms are: Hall A. Watson Wheeler, Harold Bernstein, Lillian Metcalf, Ella Matthews, J. Barton; Hall B. A. Brown, R. Hiller, J. Wilson, Dorothy Brown, M. Kennedy, M. Longyear, Room 6, Harry Connelly, Lucinda Rich; Room 7, Mildred Tooker, Wilhelmina; Room 8, Helen Wood, William Winston; Room 9, Estelle McNelis, Russel Dana; 10, Esther Rodie, Irving Smith; 11, Faith Sanford, Kenneth Van Ostenbrunne; 12, Minerva Van Gasbroek, Ray Terwilliger; 13, Mary Donovan, Sherman Hasbrouck; 14, Olga Owens, Roy Winchell; 15, Marion Kingman, Arthur McGuire; 16, Jennie Stephenson, Ernest Palmer; 23, Frances Ryan, Louis P. Weber; 24, Frank Campbell, Alice Lyons; 29, Edna Markie, R. Money; 31, Amasa Smith, Miriam Pitts.

Heavy License For Transients.

Under an ordinance adopted by the common council, a heavy license fee is to be exacted from transient dealers. This is to be imposed directly. The ordinance requires all proprietors of retail stores in Newburgh to file with the city clerk a bond for $400 to guarantee their remaining in business for four months. In reality this means for persons who enter the town to do business only a short time the payment of a license fee of $100 a month up to four months.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR EMBROIDERY BY TOUCHES OF BLACK.

In fashions the touch of black is a recognized addition to a color scheme. The same is true of embroidery. Many a centerpiece or scarf that lacks tone may be improved by outlining the color design with black. This is especially recommended on the heavy linen and scrim covers where brilliant hues appear unfinished or need bringing out.

However, black outlining is very effective on the ordinary white linen centerpiece worked in plain white. One of these seen recently had a jewel pattern with conventional scrolls done all in white. The jewels and the scrolls were outlined with a thin black thread. The centerpiece was bordered with heavy white torchon, and the whole was very effective.

INTERIOR DECORATION.

How to Furnish Your Home Without Superfluities.

Most of our schemes of interior decoration as well as our ideas on dress originate in Paris. For some unknown reason the American woman refuses to believe that her own manufacturers are capable of turning out either house furnishings or gowns which possess the same amount of artistic chic as those designed in the French capital. And it must be admitted by even the most patriotic citizen that the Parisian designers are responsible for most of the new ideas in home decoration as well as in feminine costume.

Take, for instance, the modern craze for black and white in the home. In the drawing rooms of the aristocratic Parisiennes this startling combination was seen and Poltre, the master designer of bizarre clothes for women, was the man who put this somber but smart scheme into execution. Also to the same designer must be credited much of the futuristic schemes which now decorate our homes.

The present day Paris is a war center, of course, and from that city has come recently a new craze in interior decoration which reflects very frankly the effect of the war on Parisian homes. It is the cult of simplicity, the doing away with all furniture except that which is absolutely necessary. Whether or not the idea will meet with favor in America remains to be seen.

Fewer possessions and no superfluities will be the watchword for some time to come at any rate, and the principle embodied will not be altogether deplorable from an artistic standpoint. It will prevent the overcrowding of rooms with furniture and ornaments and will help to link the purposeful to the beautiful in that correlation of which true art never loses sight. And so the modern furniture designers may, through the chaos of circumstance, have their opportunity, and in the new field that is opened up to them may erect a standard in matters decorative in which originality will have scope and the sense of fitness be given fuller play.

We cannot all be the possessors of the furniture of our forefathers, and while revering old traditions and acknowledging the romantic spell of old associations one can yet recognize that altered conditions make room for altered methods, and can welcome the freshness of new ideas evolved often from the adapted teaching of the past.

How to Save Time in Your Housekeeping Tasks.

Nowadays in the business world all the new inventions seem to have one end in view—the saving of time. Housekeepers in their no less important field must keep pace with the men and be on the watch for new ways and new means to save not only time, but strength and energy. A good housekeeper says:

I shall be glad to share with you one secret I have learned, and that is to make several desserts at a time. You will be surprised to find how much little extra trouble it is when sugar, dour, vanilla, butter and eggs are spread on the table before you and the dessert for the day's dinner finished to make as well several cup custards and a pie or some jelly.

The refrigerator is stocked in this way for two or three days and the trouble of producing morning after morning the nine or ten ingredients necessary for the simplest pudding is avoided.

How to Make an Economical Cake With One Egg.

The most economical cake I know: Shave two squares of chocolate and pour over it one-half of a cupful of boiling water. Cream one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and add well beaten yolk of one egg; stir well; add melted chocolate and water, one and a half cupfuls of flour in which is one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well, then add one-half cupful of boiling water in which has been dissolved one level teaspoonful of soda. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla. Use white of egg for frosting.

How to Use Various Household Hints.

When roasting meat in an open pan lay a clean, white muslin cloth and lay over the top of the meat. This will keep it from getting hard and will not require turning so often.

A little salt or camphor put in lamps helps to give a better light; it also saves the oil.

Beans, rice, dried fruit and the like should be kept in glass jars; then any kind can be selected at a glance and mice are never getting into them.

Beauty and Hope.

I think beauty is truthfully the expression of hope, and that is why it is so entrancing, because while the heart is absorbed in its contemplation, unconscious but powerful hope is filling the breast.—Richard Jefferies.

DAUBERT URGES SPEED

Brooklyn Captain Says Ball Games Become Dreary.

Up to Players to Keep Ticket Buyers Interested All the Time—Drastic Legislation May Be Recommended by the Powers.

Plans are already being formulated by the officers of the baseball players' fraternity to make the big league games faster next season. President Fultz of the fraternity issued a very sensible appeal to the members along that line in the middle of the recent campaign. He pointed out that baseball was experiencing a lean year and would probably have another in 1916, because of the European war and unsettled business conditions. He urged that the players move to and fro from their positions between innings on the run, cause no needless delays in batting and otherwise pepperize the pastime, so to speak, in order to make it as attractive and, therefore, as profitable as possible.

For a while Fultz's words bore fruit, but games of few runs extended from two hours to two hours and a half because of dilatory and lackadaisical tactics of the performers. This has tended to disgust many of the fans who dig into their jeans to furnish the wages for these neglected persons. The fraternity has taken up the subject again, and may recommend drastic legislation by the powers of baseball in order to spur the lazy athletes to a more seemly activity.

President Dave Fultz.

Jake Daubert is an ardent booster of the campaign for speed on the diamond, and is in favor of the suggested legislation. Said he:

"It is a crime against their intelligence and their incomes for ball players to waste as much time as they do now in the course of nine innings. Baseball differs from football, lacrosse, hockey and such sports in that all the participants are not engaged all the time. For that reason it is easy for a ball game to become dreary and draggy unless all are on their toes and creating the impression that something is going to happen every minute.

"Fans go to a baseball park not only to see the competition, but to enjoy the open air and to have their minds diverted. In other words, baseball is an amusement, with local patriotism as an added zest. That's what the spectators pay for, and it is up to the men making a living out of the sport to keep those ticket buyers interested all the time."

Pitt Has Star Utility Player. Coach Warner of Pittsburgh university has a great utility player in Gougher, who ought to be a star next season. In the Indian game he kicked a field goal from the 31-yard line.

Daily Thought. From the moment woman set about doing things for reasons, instead of merely finding reasons for what she wanted to do, there was no saving what mischief she would be at next.—G. B. Shaw

THE KITCHEN APRON.

How to Choose Materials For This Protector That Are Becoming.

In the apron that protects the gown while cooking there is possibility for the utmost ugliness, so this garment should be chosen with an eye to its effect with other things. A blue and white checked apron only looks well with a blue and white dress and the statement holds good with other contrasts. On the other hand, an apron in the solid color that forms the dress trimming is very neat, and if it is a hub pinnafore of coarse white butcher's linen it can be used with various gowns. Brown holland is also an adaptable material, and if the apron is only assumed for a moment and put on over a good dark dress it is a good thing to have it of black calico. The model of the apron must be of a generous sort, but if it is shaped to the figure and made neatly it can still be as pretty as a gown. Colored pipings could also be put with white or black, although the single color will wash better.

Most beautiful housekeeping aprons are made of yellow pongee in various English pinafore designs, which is to say, there is always a bib. The smock apron which goes over the head and hangs full below the knees is very easily made at home, and these can be real beautifiers if they are of white, yellow or calico with blue piping, with a little embroidery about the neck and armholes.

Very useful pinafores—the sort of protectors needed for pickling, preserving and any other hard cooking stunt—are of oilecloth, with several convenient pockets and braid edges. If smartness is considered the material of the apron and cap should match, except where the former is of oilecloth, which is too hot to put over the hair. But a white cap is always dainty and convenient. A mob crown and a straight or shaped face frill is the model used, but the ribbon band that trims the dresier of these caps is, of course, left off with the genuine housekeeping article.

What is called the Dutch cap, this with the face frill cut away at the forehead and very deep at the ears, is a very becoming style for pretty faces. Gingham sweeping caps and muslin breakfast caps are both made in this style.

How to Utilize Your Lace Flouncers and Allovers.

Lace flounce dresses in black or in the various lace shades, felle, biscuit, cream, a silvery white which is very delicate and pretty, and a dull gold tint may have the fashionable little jacket as an accompaniment. Such a jacket, seen the other day, made of tete de negre brown satin with a very narrow edging of spring colored braiding at the edge, was seen to be opened over a folded kerchief of dull gold lace something like a waistcoat and brought to a couple of points beneath the waist. The skirt had one deep flounce and another beneath it half the width, and still there was room to discern the dark brown satin petticoat upon which the lace was posed. The flounces were wired at the hems to make them stand away from the petticoat, which was just a sheath with the unworried hem of braiding to finish it.

How to Drive Away the Moths From Rugs and Carpets.

If you fear moths in carpets or rugs scrub the floor with strong hot salt and water and when sweeping the rugs each week, or the carpet, sprinkle it first with salt. This salt and water treatment could hardly be applied to a nicely finished floor, but moths seldom get in rugs laid on a shellacked or waxed hardwood floor. If they do the rugs can simply be taken into the air and thoroughly cleaned, with salt sprinkled on them before the sweeping or beating, and then they can be held over steaming water. The steam kills the moths.

No Passing Whim.

"Art," says Frank Alvah Parsons, "is not decided by a passing whim or style; it is based on laws that have been understood since the beginning of artistic expression. Its principles may be applied to interior decoration just as well as to painting, sculpture or any other form of artistic expression."

Radium as a Fertilizer.

One seven-hundredth part of a grain of radium will thoroughly fertilize a ton of soil, and cause grain to grow with great rapidity. Where this experiment has been tried it has been noticed that all the leaves become very dark. Radishes and carrots raised in this soil grew to six times their usual weight.

Long Pull.

Personally, we never expect to have any trouble with our appendix. We think the dentist pulled it out when he fetched that tooth.—Galveston News.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY
DECEMBER 10

People of this birthdate should wear a turquoise or a diamond. Their birth sign is Sagittarius and their planet is Jupiter.

Their nature is industrious, the disposition generally happy, and they prove good friends. However, they expect too much of others. They are quick to observe, plan and execute and make little allowance for those who are slower and less gifted.

Sometimes we find the men of this birthdate very domineering and exacting and the women are difficult to live with because of their impatience and suspicious nature.

The Freeman Want Ads will rent rooms to good advantage, will sell real estate and procure positions for domestics.

Duke to Address Business Men.

E. Woodard Duke, assistant secretary of the National Security League of America, will speak before the directors and members of the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting in the city hall next Monday morning. The subject will be "Preparedness," which at this time is a matter of vital importance, and it is hoped that not only all members of the Chamber of Commerce but interested citizens generally, who are invited, will be in attendance. Following the address the directors will transact regular routine business. As this will be the last meeting of the year, important matters are to receive consideration.

Concern With $100,000 Capital.

The Inter-America Corporation of Edenville has filed a certificate of incorporation with the secretary of state at Albany and in the Ulster county clerk's office. The company is organized to carry on development, industrial, commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, mining, agricultural, stock raising, irrigating, realty and engineering enterprises of all descriptions and has a capital of $100,000, consisting of 1,000 shares of the par value of $100 each. The directors are H. O. Coughlin, Joseph F. Curtin and Howard K. Wood, all of 36 Nassau street, New York city.

Gets Decree; Resumes Maiden Name.

Dr. and Mrs. William More Decker of Buffalo, regret that unfounded rumors make it necessary for them to announce that many months ago their daughter, Dorothy Stevens Decker, who was married to Carl Wesley Trautman, obtained an absolute divorce from him in the supreme court of this state, because of his misconduct. The decree gave her the right to resume her maiden name, and the right to the care and custody of her little daughter, Margaret Elizabeth.

Card of Thanks.

We take this opportunity to extend our most sincere thanks to the kind neighbors and friends, also to Pratt Post and Sons of Veterans, who were so kind to us in our recent affliction and death of our loving husband and father. We also appreciate the many beautiful floral tributes.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rieser have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Herman La-Tour of this city.

Twelve girls of the Sunshine Society of the Bethany Chapel visited the Misses Grace and Ada Brown of Hurley avenue on Thursday evening. The evening was spent in singing and with instrumental selections, and the guests departed at an early hour delighted with their visit.

P. B. Warner has invited the Christian Endeavor Society of the Wurts street Baptist Church to be his guests this evening from 8 to 10 o'clock at his home on Abiel street. This is the occasion of the Christian Endeavor monthly business meeting and the presence of all members is requested.

The Misses Antoinette and Helen Clair of Coanally entertained the Girls' Friendly Circle in their home on Second street on Thursday night. Dainty refreshments were served, and at an early hour, all departed vowing the Misses Clair royal hostesses. Those present included the Misses Ida Margaret Mauer, Josephine Bechold, Anna Cole and Della MacDonald.

Organ Recitals Grow in Popularity.

The midweek "twilight" organ recitals at St. John's Episcopal Church are growing in popularity as they deserve to do, if one may judge by the artistic rendition of the two excellent programs already given. On Thursday afternoon Harry P. Dodge, organist of the Roundout Presbyterian Church, gave the recital, assisted by Herman La Tour, tenor. There was a good sized audience, including several of Kingston's musical people, in spite of the nearness to Christmas and the incident rush. The first number on the program was Mendelssohn's beautiful Organ Sonata, No. 2; Graves, Adagio; Allegro Maestoso a vivace; and Fugue—Allegro Moderato. Mr. Dodge certainly showed his skill as an organist per se, in this organ classic, as well as in each succeeding number. While each movement has a peculiar charm of its own, the "Allegro Maestoso" stands out with marked dignity and richness. The next number was one quite new to practically the entire audience, and yet one which all enjoyed to the full; "Offertoire Upon Two Christmas Themes," by Guilmant. One of the themes was "Adeste Fideles," "O Come All Ye Faithful," known the world over, and the working out of the two themes was indeed musically. One of the best numbers on the entire program was the "Theme and Variations," by Hesse, a most churchly composition. No instrument is as well suited to the "theme and variation" form of composition as is the pipe organ, and this number was as interesting from the technical viewpoint of the composing as it was inspiring. The vocal solo of the afternoon was fully in keeping with the entire program, being "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," by Liddle, sung with fine interpretation and equally excellent vocalization by Hermann La Tour, tenor. An organ composer who has come to deserved prominence in the past five or six years is Mr. Kinder, organist of Old Trinity Church in Philadelphia, and the next number on the program was "Meditation," by this writer. It showed the modern trend in its style and form which were pleasing. "Berceuse, Op. 20" by Karganof, was a delightful organ-concert number. The program closed with a "Grand Choeur in A," by Kinder, and it was both brilliant and dignified, showing to excellent advantage the richness of coloring and variety of effect of which the modern instrument is capable, and was indeed inspiring as played by Mr. Dodge. Next week the recital will take place on Tuesday afternoon and will be given by Norman Coke-Jepcott, organist of the Astor Memorial Church, Rhinebeck.

Teachers' Institute in February.

Tentative plans are under way for a Teachers' Institute for the Kingston city teachers to be held in the new high school on Monday and Tuesday, February 21 and 22. The institute will be held positively on February 22. The instruction planned will include addresses by teachers from the New Paltz and Oneonta State Normal Schools, the State College for Teachers at Albany and the State Education Department.

What means this?
Are these men crazy?

In the days of the Overland trail, before the wildest fancier dared to predict a highway of iron rails stretching across that great tract of country—almost a continent of itself—which we used to call the far west, a caravan had been picking its slow way along over the green prairies and sterile plains for days and weeks, every man's face turned toward the El Dorado—more than a mile of white topped wagons, more than 300 men, women and children. There have been jealousies and heart burnings, even in the presence of the hostile Indians, moving swiftly about by day and crawling and lurking like deadly serpents by night. Two wagons haul out of the line at mid-afternoon and start away at a right angle. Two wagons—two wives, eight children, three men. It is foolhardy, dangerous. They drive away in the shadow of death, the children crying and the women pleading.

The three men will not even look back. They feel that they have been wronged and insulted, and their pride is at stake. Men will listen to no argument at such times—stubbornly refuse to reason with those they love. Those men realize their danger, and tomorrow when they have grown calmer and when something like an apology is borne to them from the main party they will return to the line, satisfied with having shown their "independence."

The little band has gone into a "dry camp"—no water to be had for man or beast. Three miles farther on there is plenty, but they could not travel in the darkness. It has been a long, hot day, and man and beast are suffering, but no one complains. Even the children choke over their bread and do not ask for a drink.

By and by, all but the sentinel close their eyes in sleep. A single sentinel to watch a camp in which there are so many precious lives menaced by such fierce enemies, over which great fortunes had circled all that day! No, all did not sleep. There were two wives who lay awake listening to the song of the crickets, to the rustling of the night breeze, to the dismal voices of the coyotes circling about the camp. There was a threat to them in every sound—a warning of evil in every gust of wind, and there were children who did not sleep, though they were as quiet as the dead. They had heard of the tomahawk and scalping knife, of the lack of mercy in the heart of an Indian warrior.

Where is the sentinel? There were two wagons. He stood or sat between them as much for the company of the inmates as for their protection. At midnight the guard is changed. The relief takes up the same position as his predecessor did. In the darkness surroundings. The only change is in the position of the moon, which has been sinking away until the big cactus now throws a dark shadow to the east. That shadow is the blackest spot in all the foregrounds, but it excites no special attention. Why should it? What should there be about a shadow cast by the June moon to create alarm.

It is 1 o'clock.
Though standing on his feet, the sentinel has nodded—almost asleep. He rouses himself with a shake, turns to every point of the compass to peer and listen, but all is quiet.

The shadow! It has grown many feet longer in the hour. It is like a great black tongue thrust out toward him from the base of the plant, but his eyes do not dwell upon it. The wagons also cast shadows to the east; so do the horses yet standing on their feet. Shadows are but shadows. The perfect silence of the night lulls the watcher on to a feeling of security, and he says to himself that the night will pass without even an alarm to wake the lightest sleeper.

"Ha! What's that?"
A movement, a rustling, a faint noise as of something stirring. A prowling wolf or coyote—that is it. The beast is dodging about in hopes to pick up something from the evening meal of the emigrants—that's all. How silly to be startled by the sound!

The shadow! It has grown until it now almost touches the sentinel's feet. Will he take warning now? Will he heed the black object which has been creeping forward as the black shadow crept, noiseless as the footfall of a specter, fierce as the growl of a wounded tiger? No! He takes a step or two to relieve his limbs and glances over at the horses.

From the blackness of the shadow a dark figure rose up and sank his tomahawk into the sentinel's skull, and the next moment a horde of dusky demons were in the camp—shouting, shooting, tomahawking, using knife or war club. Five minutes later there were no more victims to kill. Thank God, none were carried away to torture and captivity!

A few moments more to back and mutilate—to plunder, to rejoice, and then the camp of the dead was left for the dead to guard. The wolf came creeping down to the horrid feast, his eyes blazing with greediness and his yellow fangs sharpening as he drew closer and closer. Half a mile away, on the line of a dead tree, the vultures drew their heads from under their wings and uttered a hoarse croak: "They could not fly in the darkness—could not be present with the wolf to gorge themselves, but morning would do! There would be plenty left!"

Little Things That Count.

There is nothing too little for such a little creature as man. It is by studying little things that we obtain the great art of having as little misery and as much happiness as possible.—Johnson.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Dec. 10.—There is so much inconsistency in the rules and regulations that govern the "playing" of men on the big college eleven that they really are laughable.

Take the one year residence rule for instance. The big colleges like Yale, Harvard, etc., do not permit freshmen to play on the varsity team. A student cannot play on the varsity until his sophomore (second) year at that college of learning.
Those "higher institutions of learning" frown upon any private college that plays freshmen. They make the seemingly absurd claim that it is unfair to play a freshman.

Now when you look at the thing from the other side of the coin, the college that does play freshmen is at a disadvantage—not the college that doesn't. The older we grow the more we know—or ought to know. A football gink who has spent a year in college under the tutelage of the coaches, who has had a year in which to study "big league" football methods surely ought to know more about the game in his second college year than he did the year before when he came fresh from the high or prep school "bushes." That's logical isn't it?

Boys gradually grow bigger and huskier between the ages of 18 and 21. That makes it a cinch, doesn't it, that a 19 year old sophomore is stronger, heavier, taller and therefore more valuable to his team than is an 18 year old freshman?

The fundamental reason for the adoption of that no freshman on varsity teams is a farce in itself. The rule was adopted for the purpose of abolishing the practice of various colleges in coxing star high school or prep school players to their institutions and playing them in their first year out. The practice has not stopped; the big college "scouts" still use the lure. "The only thing the rule has accomplished is barring a youth from playing on the varsity during his first year at college so that he can be developed during that year and blossom forth during his Sophomore year.

Joke Rule Number Two.

And there is joke rule number two.
Suppose a youth plays on the varsity at Yale or Harvard or some of those other one year colleges. Can he play more than three years at any of those institutions? He can not. Can he go to some other private college and play for three years there—making six years in all? He can not. Can he play for three years on any private college team and then go to the U.
S. military or U. S. naval academy and play three years there? Sure he can. Not only can he play there for three years but he can play for four years.

The rules provide that after a player has "served time" for three years on a big college eleven no other private college can use his services after that unless it wishes to be footbal-istically ostracized by all the other colleges. But in the case of the army and navy it is different.

We pause to ask you:—
Why should the army and navy be excepted? Why should they be allowed to play men that no private college can play? Charles Daly started for three years at Harvard, was graduated, went to the army and played for three or four years there
—and no one got excited about it.
Olinphant "served time" at Purdue University, was graduated, went to the army and has been playing on the team since.

Any private college that plays
freshmen is ignored by the Yale-Harvard Princeton clan. Any private college team that attempts to use a footballer who already has played for three years on another varsity eleven is pointed to in scorn.

But the army and the navy play freshmen and they play men who have played on other college elevens.
They violate both rules. And nothing is said.

What is fair for the football goose doesn't seem to be fair for the football gander, does it?

Protest at "Fishing Pond."

Society of the Central Methodist features of a contemplated bazaar would be a "fishing pond and a mysterious package" has drawn criticism from the State Civil League.

Western Union Dividend.

The Western Union Telegraph Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 1/4 per cent and an extra dividend of 1/2 per cent in order to make the dividend for the amount to 5 per cent.

Doubts Taft's Statement.

Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education, is not wholly in accord with William H. Taft upon the statement that the average German boy is three years ahead of the American boy in school work accomplished at fifteen years of age.

Thursday's Results.
Stamford, 40; Elizabeth, 23.

Schedule For This Week.

Tonight—Elizabeth at Kingston.
Saturday—Kingston at Elizabeth.
Jersey City at Patterson.

Manager Morgenweck's Kingston basketball team will have as their opponents this evening on the local court, the cellar champion Elizabeth team. Since their first appearance in this city Elizabeth has considerably strengthened their quintet, with the addition of Bruggy, the Clarksburg star, and our own
"Jake" Fuller. These two men are the equal of any pair of guards in the league, and the Kingston forwards, Waechter and Johnson, will have something to do if they intend to score many points on Bruggy and Fuller.

Kingston has two games with Elizabeth this week. After tonight's game on the local court, the two teams journey to Elizabeth, where they will stage a contest Saturday evening.

Stamford Five Wins.

The Stamford basketball team of the Interstate League defeated the Elizabeth Five at Stamford Thursday by a score of 40 to 23. The contest was well played.

Women's Guild Elects Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit, held in the guild room in the rectory on Thursday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs.
Gustav W. Teichler, president; Mrs.
Frank Kline, vice-president; Mrs.
William Anderson, secretary; Mrs.
John C. Johnston, treasurer. The society is in a flourishing condition and has accomplished much good work for the church and parish.

Helpful Hints for Christmas Gifts!

More people will do their Christmas shopping early this year than ever before.
By all means, buy the largest items early, and pick up the knickknacks later.

WHAT COULD YOU BUY

That would be of better value or more serviceable than a nice pair of wool blankets? We were fortunate in securing another shipment of those superfine wool blankets direct from the factory, every one well worth a five dollar bill, selling this week for $4.50 pair; other good values, too, at $1.50, $1.97, $2.97, $3.97.

THE NEWLYWEDS AND

the has-been-weds, and all the folks at home, like a home that's homelike.
Nothing like a new rug to brighten up the sitting room, dining room or any other room in the house. We like to show rugs, and if you like to look at pretty rugs, just say "Rugs" to anybody in our store and they will gladly escort you to the rug department, where you will find little rugs and big rugs at the right prices.

HOW ABOUT CUT GLASS?

Certainly everybody likes cut glass.
You couldn't make a mistake if you tried, because every piece is useful as well as ornamental: Pitchers,
Bowls, Cruets, Tumblers, Vases,
Sugar and Creams, Celery Dishes,
Fern Dishes, etc.

WHERE'S MY BATH ROBE?

It may be hanging on our rack this week, but somebody's going to get some bath robes this year for Christmas. We hope you'll get one of ours, because everybody says they are the finest ever. If you already have one, suppose you know somebody who hasn't. What's the price? Oh, yes, $3.50, $3.97, $4.50 and $4.97. Put one aside until Christmas week? Certainly. Thank you.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE FURS.

For a Christmas present? If anyone dares ask you, you, you wouldn't say, no, unless you already have a nice set. If you only want a muff, just say the word, if we can't sell a whole set, we'll gladly sell a muff and guarantee the money's worth everytime.

WISH I HAD A WORK BASKET.

"All right, you shall have one for Christmas. Just pick out the one you like best, etc." That's the talk we like to hear, and frequently do hear around Christmas time. Yes, they are pretty, let us show them.

YOUNGEST MARINE IN U. S.
SERVICE.

San Francisco, Dec. 10.—Corporal F. C. Bradman, Jr., at the age of seven, is the youngest member of Uncle Sam's Marine Corps.

Corporal Bradman is the son of Maj. P. C. Bradman, who is stationed at the Mare Island Navy Yard.

Almost since his birth, young Bradman has been a constant companion of the marines in his father's command, and they recently took him in as a member of the company, and gave him the rank of corporal.
He attends all drills and performs all the duties of his office.

River Closed 25 Years Ago.

Twenty-five years ago navigation on the Hudson was actually closed from Poughkeepsie northward. The steamer William F. Remer made its last trip south and the boat was put into winter quarters.

Milk Producers Dissatisfied.

A large number of Dutchess county milk producers called on the attorney-general in Albany the other day in an effort to obtain an investigation of the alleged high cost of milk distribution in Poughkeepsie.
